CHARGES U. S. PLANS AGGRESSION

Dems Choose Bushnell to Oppose Locke

DEFEATS ORR 882 TO 417 IN CITY PRIMARY

Former Postmaster Winner as Mihalick, Wilburn Defeat Incumbent Councilmen.

VOTES COST $2.35 EACH

Light Balloting Also Puts Berg, Hunter, Emmons on Council Slate.

In a primary marked by the lightest voting in years, Fred M. Bushnell, former Mansfield postmaster, yesterday won the Democratic nomination for mayor, while two incumbent councilmen, Arthur L. Croak and Jacob Kutschall, were defeated in their bids for re-nomination.

Bushnell defeated James F. Orr, Mansfield typewriter dealer and a newcomer in politics, by a margin of two to one and will oppose Mayor William J. Locke in the November election. Locke, unopposed for the Republican nomination, received 421 votes. Bushnell polled 882 votes to Orr's 417 in yesterday's primary.

A four-candidate race saw George Berg, Lester Hunter and Harry M. Emmons, present Democratic councilmen, win the right to oppose three Republicans for council-at-large posts in the fall. Herman Speas, the fourth Democrat, failed in his attempt to win a place on the ticket.

Only 1,777 votes were cast with the Democrats out-voting the Republican three to one. Republicans, however, had no contests while Democrats had four. The small vote boosted the cost of the primary to approximately $2.35 a vote, the board of elections reported.

Because of the small vote, returns began to reach the county board of elections by 6:45 p. m., 15 minutes after the polls closed. Most of the precincts had reported by 7:45, and the last was in at 8:30 p. m. Precinct A of the Fourth

Proposes 2nd Reservoir to Boost Supply

Mayor Says He'll Request U. S. to Give Financial Aid to Project.

Construction of a second reservoir to meet future water needs caused by city expansion was proposed today by Mayor William J. Locke.

The mayor's plan was made known when he announced that federal financial assistance for building such a structure will be sought Friday when he calls on Public Works administration officials in Detroit.

Increased residential building and industry's increased demands for water due to the defense program make it advisable to create a new source of water supply in addition to the 6,000,000-gallon reservoir located in Woodland, Locke said.

Figures are now being prepared by City Engineer C. W. Statler to submit to George W. Cordick, regional director of the Public Works administration, although he declined to estimate the amount needed for the project.

The shortage of water in the Rocky Fork Valley, from which local industries receive their supply, was cited out by the mayor, as he made known that two factories, Empire Steel and the Mansfield Tire and Rubber companies, had already called upon the city for water.

The city itself is in no present danger of a water shortage, O. C. Kalbfleisch, city water superintendent, said, although the volume pumped each day exceeds that pumped two years ago at this period by approximately 2,000,000 gallons.

Kalbfleisch said that on Aug. 6, the volume pumped totaled 5,112,000 gallons and that the average daily volume pumped two years ago was about 3,400,000.

Federal aid for improvements for the sewage disposal plant will also be sought by the mayor, who estimated tha the city would have between $35,000 and $40,000 to apply on the combined projects. This amount, the mayor said, has accumulated in the sewer rental fund.

FARMERS HERE

Rural Ohioans Gather In City For Wheat Protest Meeting.

Scores of farmers from all sections of rural Ohio left their chores today to gather in Mansfield to map a state-wide protest against what they call an unfair restriction of their activities by the federal government.

Meeting in the John Simpson junior high school auditorium in afternoon and evening sessions, they were to hear talks by Edward H. Kennedy, a farm representative in Washington, D. C., and Russell T. Kiko, Massillon, head of the Ohio Farmers Protective association.

A state organization of farmers who oppose the AAA wheat marketing limitations and the 49-cent tax on wheat marketed in excess of government limitations was expected to be formed at the meeting this afternoon.

H. H. Fackler, Plymouth, chairman of the Richland county unit, said county and township groups will be organized in all parts of the state.

DEATH RULED SUICIDE

OXFORD—(AP)—Coroner Garrett J. Boone returned a suicide verdict in the death of Alvin J. Sloneker, 64, former Butler county sheriff, whose body was found yesterday near a vacant house, a 38-caliber revolver beside it.

They Win Contests In Democrat Primary

A veteran and two newcomers held the spotlight in yesterday's primary, in Mansfield which attracted only 1,777 voters. Fred M. Bushnell, top right, won the Democratic nomination for mayor, defeating James F. Orr by a two-to-one vote. Bushnell was Mansfield postmaster from 1915 to 1923. Michael A. Mihalick, upper left, defeated Councilman Jacob Kutschall for the Democratic council nomination in the Fourth ward. Mihalick, a salesman employed by a dairy firm, is making his first bid in politics. Stanley L. Wilburn, lower left, is the Democratic nominee for council in the Sixth ward. He defeated Councilman Arthur L. Croak who was seeking his third term. Wilburn, employed by the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, lost the nomination to Croak two years ago.

SEEK SESSION TO CUT TAXES

Democrats Sight Surplus, Ask Bricker To Call Legislature.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—A joint committee of state senators and representatives of Cuyahoga county today petitioned Gov. John W. Bricker to immediately call a special session of the Ohio legislature for the purpose of "effecting a reduction in current taxes and the re-allocation of the existing surplus among the local subdivisions."

The committee, headed by Sen. Charles Vanik and Rep. Harry J. Dworkin, Democrats, said that reports of the state auditor's office indicated that current state revenues will exceed all budgetary requirements for the biennium; that there was a surplus in 1940 of $17,000,000, and that there would be a surplus of $34,000,000 at the close of the biennium.

"There is no justification or authorization for such a surplus," the committee said in its petition, "and it is also unwise public policy for such a surplus to be lying idle.

"The citizens are entitled to a rebate in the form of reduced taxes whenever revenues are shown to be far in excess of anticipated needs.

"You (Bricker) have it within your power by facilitating the ability of the people to meet the national defense burden through the medium of warranted tax reductions."

Yesterday, Sen. William M. Boyd, Democrat, declared that a reduction in the sales tax is the only tax slash which will reduce the tax burden "of all people." He estimated that the sales tax increase alone for the biennium would exceed $26,000,000 at the present rate of collection.

Bushnell, Dem Nominee, Credits 'Quiet Campaign'

'Talking With Friends, Acquaintances,' Responsible for Victory, Says Democratic Mayoralty Winner.

Unassuming, genial Fred M. Bushnell, former postmaster, today attributed his victory at the polls over James F. Orr in the Democratic mayoralty contest to a "quiet campaign among friends and acquaintances."

Bushnell defeated Orr 882 to 417 in the only major contest of the primaries. He will oppose Mayor William J. Locke, unopposed Republican incumbent in the fall election.

"Talking with my friends and acquaintances was responsible for my nomination yesterday," Bushnell stated. He watched returns with friends at the board of elections in the courthouse.

The nominee, a native of Mansfield, and a life-long Democrat, accepted the results of his sweeping two to one victory calmly and without a trace of "victory complex" in his person.

"I felt sure of the results from the beginning," he said

Regarding plans for the coming fall elections in which he will face Mayor Locke, Bushnell showed a quiet confidence

"I feel," he said, "that the Democratic party will win with the candidates nominated at the primaries last night."

As for campaign plans, Bushnell said that he would cooperate closely with the party executive committee and workers.

No newcomer to public life, he has served as postmaster of the city during the years 1915-23, and was director and treasurer of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce for more than 25 years.

Man Who Boasts of Lindbergh Kidnaping Questioned By FBI.

CHICAGO —(INS)—Hans Krohn, 58, was turned over to federal authorities for questioning today for his boast that he had personal knowledge that Bruno Hauptmann was innocent of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

Police said Krohn, a carpenter, made the boast during a tavern argument in which he insisted he knew Hauptmann was innocent of the crime for which he was electrocuted. After questioning the man, police said his statement "probably was just one of those tavern stories," but that nevertheless he would be grilled further by federal agents.

Nazi Would Have His Fuehrer Help Catch Red Shell

NEW YORK — (INS) — Moscow radio today related the following anecdote about Adolf Hitler which, it said, was current among German soldiers, according to a broadcast picked up by CBS:

"On a visit to the eastern front, Hitler asked a soldier what his last wish would be, should a Soviet shell fall near him.

"'I would wish,' the soldier replied, 'that my Fuehrer stood beside me'."

The Germans, according to the Moscow broadcaster, "are beginning to ridicule Hitler and his contemptible henchmen . . . they learn to laugh, like people who think."

Roosevelt Okays Measure Creating Plain Clothes Espionage Force.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt has signed a bill permitting Secretary of Navy Knox to set up a special plain clothes force to combat threats of espionage and sabotage in naval shore establishments.

The measure also permits appointment of a $7,500 a year civilian to head the new special protective force, and authorizes expenditure of $1,000,000 annually to maintain it.

Asserts U. S. Will Write Its Own Production Ticket In '42

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—OPM Director William S. Knudsen predicted today that the United States will be able to "write its own ticket" in defense production by the middle of 1942.

Speaking before the defense production clinic of the New York state division of commerce, Knudsen expressed confidence that the nation's rate of arms production soon would exceed that of any other country in the world.

"In fact," he said, "I have this forecast to make—if we hit the half-way mark by Jan. 1, 1942, we should hit peak production by July and after that American can write its own ticket on war material and this ticket, as far as I am concerned, will be twice what anybody else's ticket is."

Knudsen said that by 1943, the nation would be producing at least $30,000,000,000 of defense materials as against only $9,000,000,000 in 1941 and an estimated $20,000,000,000 in 1942.

He called upon the various government defense agencies to stop "bickering" over their respective powers. He said the production job could best be accomplished if manufacturers were hampered by a minimum of "Washington."

QUICK SENATE OK FOR ARMY BILL SOUGHT

Legislation Passed By Vote of 203 To 202 In Stormy Night Session.

PROVIDES WAGE BOOST

Leaders Hopeful of Speedy Acceptance of Changes By Upper House.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Administration leaders hoped today that the senate would accept and speed to President Roosevelt tomorrow the house version of army extension legislation passed by a one-vote margin in a lengthy, uproarious session.

The climax of the tumultuous battle was reached last night when opposing forces marshalled their strength for the 203 to 202 showdown.

So close was the vote that a recapitulation was ordered amidst the boos and cheers of house members. Tense, packed galleries — liberally sprinkled with soldiers in uniform—listened intently as the final roll was called and the tally announced

Administration leaders were hopeful that the senate, which does not meet until tomorrow, will accept the house version of the resolution, thus completing congressional action and sending the measure to Mr. Roosevelt for signature.

Otherwise, the legislation as passed by the senate and house would have to be sent to conference to reconcile their differences. Leaders admitted that such a development would result in serious delay to the legislation.

Sen. Elbert D. Thomas, D., Utah, senate manager of the legislation, announced that he would ask concurrence in house modifications, unless some major conflict between the two versions was disclosed by further study of the house resolution.

The senate and house revolutions both provide for retention of draftees, national guardsmen, reservists, and enlisted regulars for

KEEPS SILENT

Roosevelt Lets Capital Go 4 Days Without Word.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The capital remained without word of President Roosevelt today, the fourth day since the last dispatch was received from the chief executive's yacht Potomac.

The navy department, through which communications from the vacationing presidential yacht have been made public, had no comment on the Potomac's silence, unbroken since a dispatch was received late Saturday morning.

Mr. Roosevelt left on the cruise off New England on Aug. 3 and expected to be gone a week or ten days. Arrangements were made for the Potomac to send radio dispatches to the navy department here for release, but officials said at the time that there was no promise on the part of the president or his companions that dispatches would be sent with any regularity.

Berlin Says We Have Our Eyes On Martinique

Predicts American Seizure of French Island As Result of Alignment Of Vichy With Nazis; London And Washington Perturbed.

(By Associated Press)

Germany charged the United States today with planning to seize the French island of Martinique, in the West Indies, as a result of French Chief of State Petain's newly-announced policy of stronger collaboration with Germany.

Authorized quarters in Berlin declared bluntly that certain American groups which "for a long time have cast covetous eyes on Martinque" would use Petain's speech yesterday as an excuse to "satisfy their lust" for the island.

In both Washington and London, serious repercussions arose over France's new attitude.

In Washington, the conviction was freely expressed that Petain's pro-Nazi alignment held threats to American interests and territories, and the U. S. state department was reported negotiating for air base rights on the hump of Brazil closest to Dakar, French West African take-off base nearest to the Americas.

In London, authoritative quarters said Petain planned to "subjugate the French people and force upon them a policy which they detest."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull withheld formal comment, but some senators and congressmen outspokenly urged that the American republics should take over France's colonies in the western hemisphere.

Several congressmen also advocated breaking off diplomatic relations with the Vichy government and recognizing Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French regime.

British Minister of Supply Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express, referring to strong new powers granted to France's vice premier, Admiral Jean Darlan, declared:

"Darlan has become France's fuehrer and Petain his Hindenburg."

Petain is 85. Germany's late President Paul von Hindenburg was 86 when he died, after yielding full powers to the rising satellite, Adolf Hitler.

In Berlin the Nazi foreign office hailed Petain's speech as important because powers outside the continent "which desire to establish guardianships over France were rebuffed" and because the aged marshal had solidly allied

ASSERT SOVIET FORCE TRAPPED

BULLETIN

LONDON — (INS) — Reuter's (British) news agency declared in a dispatch from Stockholm today that the Soviet Black sea port of Odessa had been captured by German troops.

(By International News Service)

Soviet forces trapped around Odessa are facing a "Dunkirk" and already are frantically trying to flee the strategic port by way of the Black Sea, German military quarters in Berlin announced today.

Picturing the important grain port as already lost to the Soviet, Berlin added that the entire Ukrainian front is rapidly collapsing with Nazi mechanized troops hotly pursuing the fleeing Red soldiers.

Moscow continued stubbornly to deny all German claims and insisted that Russian troops were holding firm. The third mighty Nazi offensive has been stemmed, the Red army high command said, and comparative quiet exists along the 1,800-mile front. The Red army added that 7,500 Germans were killed or wounded when the 68th Nazi division was wiped out on the central front.

British military quarters, however, took a more pessimistic view of the situation. They declared that the Soviet front in the Ukraine had "deteriorated greatly" in the past week and that troops around Odessa and Nikolaev were in "dangerous" positions.

As the world continued to ring with speculation and prediction following Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's speech yesterday when he pledged the Vichy government

'FALL' ARRIVES

Mercury Drops 43 Degrees and It'll Stay Cool.

A touch of fall weather sneaked in on summer last night to drop the temperature in Mansfield to 43 degrees, lowest since last spring.

Confident that there's more summer to come, Mansfielders welcomed the relief from the sultry heat of a few days and brought out some extra blankets.

The weatherman said the cool spell will remain over tonight, but the temperature will start up again by Thursday afternoon. Despite the unseasonable low last night, the average reading for the past 24 hours was 61.5 degrees, less than a degree below normal.

A high of 80 yesterday kept the average up. The reading at noon today was 69.

Honor Mansfielder Leaving Army Service After 30 Years

Some general once said that the army travels on its stomach and if that is so then Battery D, 134th Field Artillery, Camp Shelby, may have to cut down on its traveling for a little while.

George Mortimer, of Mansfield, chef of Battery D for the past 30 years, today retired from the service.

Last week executive officers and enlisted men gave a farewell party for Mortimer who first entered the ranks in 1909. The party was held at Camp Shelby.

In 1916 he took his pots and pans through nine months of federal service along the Mexican border. Later, in 1919, he enlisted in Battery D, which was then a part of the newly organized Ohio State National Guard.

During those 30 years of service Mortimer watched the diets of officers and men. Many of the executive officers attending the dinner, had enlisted and risen through the ranks to their present ratings. All of them liked Mortimer's "culinary style."

Following the dinner Mortimer was presented a gold wrist watch bearing the inscription "Presented to George Mortimer by members of Battery D after 30 years of faithful service in the organization."

Lt. Col. Helge G. Ekedahl made the presentation.

GERMANS CLAIM U.S. HAS EYES ON MARTINIQUE

Predicts American Aggression as Result of Alignment of Vichy With Berlin.

himself with Hitler's "new order" for Europe.

Washington felt that the United States and France — traditional friends since the American revolution—had reached a critical pass in their relations.

Fears were freely expressed in official quarters that Vichy's new program of collaboration with Germany held threats to American interests and territories.

Secretary Hull long ago accused Darlan of being partner to a collaboration "scheme" whose object was to "deliver France politically, economically, socially and militarily to Hitler" and make France a co-belligerent in "Hitler's desperate effort to conquer Great Britain and secure control of the high seas."

It was generally believed in Washington that United States policy would be guided by the way the new collaboration manifested itself.

Vital questions of the moment were whether the French fleet would cooperate with German aims, whether French help would be sought against Britain, and whether Nazi penetration of French colonies might be expected —either in Africa or the western hemisphere.

Another unknown factor of considerable importance was the reaction of Gen. Maxime Weygand, pro-consul for North Africa, to the new collaboration. The general several times has publicly declared he would defend the independence and integrity of the French colonies against any aggressor.

The United States has cooperated with Weygand by sending supplies to the French North African colonies, cut off from their normal supply sources by the war. Moreover, Weygand and Darlan have not always seen eye to eye.

Senators and representatives were outspoken with recommendations for vigorous counter-action.

They urged that the United States, with the other American republics, assume the protection of Martinique and other French colonies in this hemisphere just as soon as it was evident that they might be used as stepping stones for Nazi infiltration.

Meanwhile, pursuing a broad strategy designed to safeguard the hemisphere, the United States was reported negotiating for airbase rights in Brazil to offset any German threat to Dakar, French West Africa.

Informed congressional sources declared the state department has initiated discussions with Brazil, urging her to resume control of an Italian-operated airport on an island off Natal, seaport on the hump of the South American continent.

From Natal, it is only 1,620 miles northeast across the narrowest part of the South Atlantic to Dakar, referred to frequently as a potential jump-off point for operations against the western hemisphere.

SEEK QUICK OK FOR ARMY BILL

Leaders Hopeful of Speedy Acceptance of Measure By Upper House.

18 months beyond their normal service.

They also include a declaration that the national interest is "imperiled" and provide for raises of $10 per month for all classes of troops, except commissioned officers, after they have completed their first years of service. The existing limitation of 900,000 upon the number of draftees who may be in training at any one time is lifted.

The house vote on the legislation was the closest any major administration measure has experienced since the outbreak of the European conflict.

After the roll call was first announced, Speaker Sam Rayburn ordered a recapitulation. The recount showed the same tally, however, and while bipartisan opponents roared their objections, Rayburn declared the measure approved.

Although the administration had anticipated a close vote, they were startled by the final outcome. They had been led to expect a wider margin when they mustered a 215 to 190 vote against a recommittal motion a few moments earlier.

The 182 Democrats who voted for pasage were joined by 21 Republicans. Opposed were 133 Republicans, 65 Democrats, three progressives and one American labor party members.

House modifications of the legislation included a provision requiring the secretary of war to discharge draftees for whom continued service would create a hardship, unless their dismissal would adversely affect national defense. The senate resolution made the discharge discretionary.

The house also added a provision which would permit draftees to deduct the 18 months extended service from their 10-year terms as army reserves. Another amendment would revise the national guard act to provide for retention of those troops under the resolution.

Attempts to lower the extension provision of the bill below 18 months were beaten down, as were other opposition motions.

Administration strength was indicated in the first test which resulted in a 185-146 vote against a proposal by Rep. Dewey Short, R., Mo., to strike out the declaration that the national interest was imperiled. Another amendment by Short to exempt selectees from the service extension was defeated 195 to 146.

The opposition then sought to restrict the extended service to 12 months but were defeated 176 to 117. The house also rejected a proposal by Rep. Carl Hinshaw, R., Calif., to limit the extension to six months. The vote was 97 to 61.

Rep. Arthur D. Healey, D., Mass. offered the amendment providing the $10 wage boost for army men and it was first rejected on a standing vote. Proponents then demanded a teller vote and it was adopted, 131 to 84.

The debate broke across party lines, as did the voting. Rep. Bertrand J. Gearhart, R., Calif., warned his colleagues that "you'll regret to the end of your lives a vote against this bill." He asserted that the Vichy government would make France a "Nazi puppet state" and give Germany a path through Spain, French Africa and Dakar to the Western Hemisphere.

STURGES TO BE OPENED SOON

Service Director Says New Pavement To Be Ready For Traffic By Monday.

Mansfield motorists should be able to drive over Sturges avenue between Cline and Lexington avenues after next Saturday, City Engineer W. C. Statler announced today.

The city engineer said that the street would probably be thrown open for week-end traffic next Saturday allowing the cars to ride on the concrete foundation which will be "curing" the rest of this week.

Statler believes that drivers will use the street next week-end unless Mansfield Asphalt Paving company workers decide to apply the asphalt topping on Thursday or Friday. If the asphalt is laid, traffic would be kept off the street until Monday.

Bids have been received on the improvement of Wood street between Ruth and Cline avenues and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton is expected to award the contract on Thursday, the earliest possible date by law.

The Mansfield Asphalt paving company submitted the lowest bid for the construction of the improved street. Bids were given for brick and asphalt pavements with six and seven-inch pavements and for a concrete paving.

State Doesn't Know What To Do With $104,909

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The man took two bites out of the proverbial news-making dog today.

The state of Ohio has received a grant of $104,909 from the federal government and doesn't have any plans on how to use it.

The sum is due the state from the federal fish and wild life service but E. P. Rhinehart, assistant game management chief of the state conservation division said the division had no project drawn upon which to use the money. In fact, Ohio has around $100,000 from previous allocations in this fund which it has not spent.

The federal law specifies that the money must be used by the state to purchase land, develop lands already owned or initiate survey to improve game management.

ward, which cast the heaviest vote in the city, was the last to report. A total of 108 votes were cast in that precinct. The smallest vote was in Precinct F of the Third ward where only 19 voters went to the polls.

Party workers blamed the war and the lack of contests for the slight interest shown by voters. Neither party organization, however, did any campaigning in behalf of any candidate, leaving the candidates to map their own programs.

Bushnell carried all but six of the city's 51 precincts. He lost only two, and in four, the vote was tied. Orr led by a vote of 16 to 15 in precinct H of the Second ward and won precinct L of the Third ward by a vote of 19 to 14.

Showing surprising strength, Michael A. Mihalick, a dairy salesman, defeated Councilman Kutschall by 15 votes in a spirited Fourth ward race. The vote was 145 to 130. Kutschall was seeking the nomination for a second term.

Kutschall was leading by a small margin until Mihalick's home precinct A, reported at 8:30 p. m. It gave Mihalick 75 votes to 39 for Kutschall.

In another upset, Stanley L. Wilburn defeated Sixth ward Councilman Croak by a margin of nearly two to one. The total unofficial vote was 163 to 83. Wilburn carried six of the nine precincts. Croak, who has served two terms in council, defeated Wilburn for the nomination two years ago.

George Berg polled the most votes in the Democratic council-at-large contest. He had 818 to 817 for Lester Hunter, 756 for Harry M. Emmons, and 587 for Speas.

Total unofficial complimentary votes for unopposed Democratic candidates were:

Howard Miller, council president, 1081; Earle K. Troll, city treasurer, 1063; Leslie K. Wagner, city solicitor, 1030; W. F. Feigenbaum, First ward council, 196; Joseph Foncannon, Second ward council, 115; Richard H. Wynn, Third ward council, 183; Fred Miller, Fifth ward council, 113.

The complimentary vote for Republican candidates was:

W. C. Mansfield, council president, 295; Dean A. Eckert, city treasurer, 306; Lydon H. Beam, city solicitor, 381; council-at-large, George Kyle, 359; James R. Anderson, 343, and Roy Vaughn, 341; Russell Porch, First ward council, 99; C. N. Shultz, Second ward council, 62; Clifford G. Knarr, Third ward council, 80; William Owings, Fourth ward council, 29; Paul W. Bush, Sixth ward council, 55.

Won't Wear Hope Diamond When She Marries Reynolds

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass.—(INS)—Although she is not superstitious, Miss Evalyn Walsh McLean, blonde 20-year-old daughter of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, will not wear the famed Hope diamond when she marries U. S. Sen. Robert E. Reynolds, 57, North Carolina.

Discussing her engagement, Miss McLean replied to a question about the diamond:

"You mean that thing of mother's? Oh, I don't believe in any of that superstition. As a matter of fact I have worn it myself. But I don't plan to wear it as wedding jewelry. I don't believe it would be suitable for that."

The superstition attached to the famous stone is that it brings misfortune to its owners. May Yohe, late stage star, was a former owner.

Nazis Claim 184 Russian Planes Shot Down and Destroyed.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—The official news agency DNB said today that the Luftwaffe and anti-aircraft guns yesterday destroyed a total of 184 Russian airplanes, including 121 shot down and 63 destroyed on the ground.

ASSERT SOVIET FORCE TRAPPED

to collaboration with the Axis, Berlin quarters charged that the United States was ready to seize the French Caribbean island of Martinique.

The pretext for this seizure, it was declared in Berlin, would be that the island had become a threat to the western hemisphere since France had thrown in her lot with the Axis.

The Germans also claimed to have pierced the outer ring of fortifications surrounding Kiev and to be within sight of the Ukrainian metropolis.

Great Britain announced that the most widespread aerial offensive of the war had been directed against the reich by bombers and fighters of the Royal Air Force.

Berlin was one of more than ten cities bombed by the R. A. F. during the night in spite of bad weather. Heavy loads of bombs fell on the German capital, according to the British air ministry.

Other British air targets were Madeburg, Hanover, Essen, Stetting, Kiel, Bremen, Osnabruck, Duisburg, and Cologne.

Berlin said the British air attack was carried out at a tremendous cost to the RAF, while only a small number of bombs were dropped on the outskirts of Berlin. British plane losses in the last 24 hours were put at 57.

Some German casualties in other British Raids on northern and western Germany were admitted in Berlin. The RAF attack on the Nazi metropolis followed a record raid by hundreds of British craft on Cologne by daynight yesterday.

The luftwaffe during the night dropped explosives in the British midlands and eastern England in small-scale attacks.

Report Barefoot Reds Rout Nazi Division

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—A detachment of barefoot Russian troops was reported today to have routed a German motorized division and a Soviet communique claimed that two more divisions, including one of Adolf Hitler's picked "SS" troops, had been smashed.

A telephone message from the front reported that Russian troops, in a local counter-attack, had recaptured the city "N". Russian tanks were said to have attacked the city from three sides and destroyed two German infantry regiments and two battalions of field artillery.

The barefoot detachment had been encircled for 32 days and was battling its way back to the Russian lines when it encountered the German motorized division.

Japan in 'The Calm Before a Storm'

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Japan is in "the calm before a storm" and hostile nations that under-estimate Japanese strength are "inviting unfortunate results," a naval spokesman warned today as restrictions on exports from Indo-China tightened the diplomatic crisis in the Pacific.

"Now is not the time to fuss over whether Japan should enter the war," the spokesman, Hideo Hiraide, told the Japanese press.

"The present is merely the calm before the storm and the people must be prepared."

Hiraide said the the Japanese were peace-loving but that there was a limit to their patience and that after that limit was reached there would be an explosion.

LAW SUSPENDED

Executive Order Lifts 8-Hour Day on Public Works.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt has suspended the 8-hour day law as applied to mechanics and laborers employed by the war department on public works necessary to national defense in the United States.

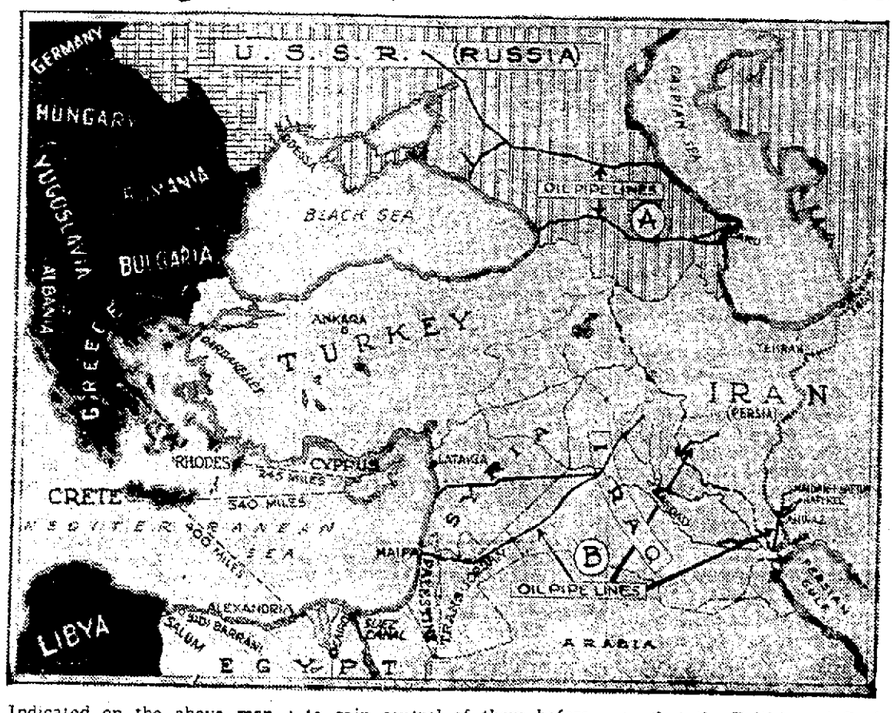
The action, by means of an executive order announced today, was said at the White House to have been taken because of the necessity of completing all military projects at the earliest practical date.

The suspension applies to workers on air fields, troop housing units, fortifications and other works necessary to the military establishment.

GETS COMMITTEE POST

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Thom (D.-Ohio) has been named on a committee of representatives protesting curtailment of production in the washing machine and ironer industry. The representatives met yesterday and demanded that any production curtailment be offset by placing of defense orders to avoid unemployment in the industry.

Nazi, Eager For Oil, Point Toward Iran Fields



Indicated on the above map are the important oil fields of Iran and Iraq (B) and the Russian Caucasus (A) toward which, experts believe, the Germans are driving in a desperate effort to gain control of them before their own oil reserves are depleted. Russia and Great Britain both are applying pressure upon the Iranian government to oust Nazi influence from the country, so that the British and Soviets can organize defense of the vital oil fields. Reports have indicated that Germany might possibly attempt to cross Turkey to reach these objectives.

PROPOSE CUT

Shelby Grocers Study Reduced Delivery Schedule.

SHELBY—A proposal to reduce delivery service from grocery stores here to three times daily instead of four will be discussed by the Shelby Retail Grocers' association at its next meeting Sept. 8 at Patrie's grocery.

The move would be made to cut the amount of gasoline used by the grocery trucks and thus aid in the national defense program.

The suggestion of reducing delivery service was made at a meeting of the Grocers' association at Rieser's food market here this week.

ROBBERY SOLVED

LUCAS—With the arrest of an alleged participant by Warsaw, Ind., police, the recent robbery of the Banks service station in Lucas is believed to have been solved. Four tires and a pair of fog lamps, stolen from the Lucas station, are reported to have been found on the accused's car by Warsaw officers. The accused is reported to have been visiting relatives in the Lucas community at the time of the robbery.

A second man who took part in the robbery has not been located. The abruptness with which both men left Lucas the night of the robbery aroused suspicion here and led to the investigation which resulted in the arrest at Warsaw.

The Low Down on Borrowing

Butter is up. Steak is dear. Coal is getting scarce, we hear. But money is plentiful and there's no increase in its cost either. In fact, you can get a loan of $100 today and repay it in regular monthly payments for one year at an average daily cost of less than 4 cents.

So here's a timely tip . . . Arrange a convenient budget loan now. Take the money, square up bills and debts and have just one place to pay. Then, fill up the coal bin, stock up the larder and replenish your wardrobe. Get the benefit of cash buying now and repay your loan later, a little at a time. A really good idea!

FUN AND PROFIT TOO

Our loan No. 118436 is a "traveling restaurateur" who paid the balance due on his car, bought material to build a traveling lunch stand and was off to the fairs selling hamburgers and soft drinks, all with the help of a small loan. He says, "We had a lot of fun out of it as well as a handsome profit. Thanks to The City Loan."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 13, 1941.

Divided Opinion On Extension

THE scant margin of one vote, by which the house yesterday passed the army service extension bill, is convincing proof of need for a better understanding of the real issue involved in this matter.

If there is need for defensive preparation, as has been presented by President Roosevelt and his advisers, there is no question as to the urgency of immediately developing trained manpower sufficient to meet requirements. Extension of service of present draftees under the age of 28, plus induction of additional registrants, is apparently the only practicable solution of this problem.

If there is no need for defense steps, then there has already been a tremendous waste of time, effort and money, under sanction of congress and with apparent approval of a great majority of the American people.

Yesterday's vote of 203 to 202 in favor of draft extension for 18 months represents too nearly an even balance on this question to be satisfactory to proponents of extension and leaves opponents in position to continue objections to keeping draftees in training or service longer than the one year for which they were originally called.

With an apparent lack of understanding by many of these young men, and their elders, as to any actual need for safeguarding this nation against danger of aggression by the Axis powers, it seems obvious that first attention should now be given to further enlightenment on this subject, before it is too late.

Yesterday's action by the Vichy government of conquered France, making complete surrender to the Nazi regime, is another indication of the trend of events in Europe which must not be overlooked in its potential effects on the United States, and, coupled with the growing Japanese menace in the Far East, should aid in the badly needed unification of sentiment in this country.

Unless there is willing co-operation on the part of young men affected by the draft, and wholehearted support of the national defense program as it continues to be developed, the future for America seems darker than can be pleasantly contemplated.

Mansfield's Expensive Primaries

SUCH a small percentage of eligible Mansfield voters paid any attention to yesterday's primaries that it may be wondered if the trouble and expense was justified.

With only two city-wide contests on the Democratic ticket, plus two for ward councilmen, it may appear that considerable money could have been saved to taxpayers by following the example of a majority of other Ohio cities in which the two political parties nominated by petition, without contests, and thus eliminated the high cost of primaries.

While there were no Republican contests here, there was the cost of printing ballots, keeping polling places open and paying precinct officials, with absolutely no incentive for Republicans to vote.

The purpose of nominating by primaries is to secure expression of a majority or plurality of voters in choosing party candidates, but this is not accomplished when voting is confined to such an unimpressive minority as participated yesterday.

When the point is reached at which there is some serious effort to cut down needless waste of public money a way will probably be found to eliminate unnecessary municipal primaries.

An Estimate of Churchill

BASING judgment on the estimate of Louis J. Alber, of Cleveland, speaker at a civic club meeting here yesterday, it is Winston Churchill rather than Adolf Hitler, who is the real colossus of the present day world holocaust—and it is Churchill who will be "the great, outstanding, heroic figure" of this era.

Product of an American mother and an English father, Winston Churchill, as pictured by Mr. Alber, who enjoyed acquaintance of twenty years and close association with the British prime minister for a number of months, has a personality, magnetism, genius and determination which makes him a worthy representative of the two great nations now united in the common cause of fighting for the preservation of democracy and human freedom in the wrold.

Not known to all is that Churchill overcame the handicaps of lisping and stuttering to attain place among outstanding orators. "His utterances," said Mr. Alber, "have been effective instruments of warfare no less potent than tanks and bombers."

A note of optimism sounded by Mr. Alber is found in the estimate: "You can't down Winston Churchill. He belongs to the breed of men who can be killed, of course, but who can't be conquered."

Observers of events will be inclined to agree that Churchill is well chosen for the heroic role he is now being called upon to play, and it is hoped that Mr. Alber does not exaggerate his ability to carry on.

Forecasts Tougher Going

DONALD M. NELSON, director of purchases for the OPM, minces no words in telling American business men to get busy and go forward. He grants that many manufacturers in non-defense industries face difficulties in the increasing shortage of raw materials. Some, he said, are in a very bad fix. "Neither government nor private industry has really faced the thing through yet."

But even so, he does not believe the American way is that of the cry-baby:

"American business did not become the admiration of the world through a process of sitting on its collective hands and yelling for government help whenever the going got tough."

Anyone who has read much of the history of three centuries of American development must agree with him.

Moreover, the American who uses foresight is apt to think that if business men or any other group of the American people think the going is tough now, they simply "ain't seen nothing yet." It is likely to be getting tougher so fast from now on that they cannot even imagine it.

It appears that some folks didn't begin to take the war seriously until they learned that it might deprive them of silk stockings.

It is not that people like Stalin more—it is merely that they like Hitler less.

Stalin's Place When Axis Loses

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

SUPPOSE Russia continues to put up a fairly effective fight against the Nazis—perhaps retreating more or less but still keeping Herr Hitler's forces too fully occupied on their eastern front to strike out formidably in any other direction?

And suppose the Ax' finally is licked, thanks, in considerable part, to this Muscovite distraction.

What, then, is going to be our subsequent feeling toward Joe Stalin?

He's pre-eminently representative of Communism. It's only a matter of weeks since we considered him one, at least, of the bloodiest tyrants in creation. The state department would barely associate with his Washington ambassador, Constantine Oumansky.

Now Secretary Hull and Undersecretary Welles give Constantine the glad hand every time he calls on 'em. In fact, they invite him to drop in and make himself at home in our foreign office. And Harry Hopkins visits Joe himself, to promise him all the aid we can extend to him in his scrap with Adolf and Benito Mussolini.

Alright, suppose the war ends satisfactorily to the democracies, with the Russians entitled to a good bit of the credit for it? We and the other democracies will be under no small amount of obligation to 'em.

But how about Joe Stalin—and his Communistic gang?

It's true. Joe didn't jump into the rumpus because of any democratic sympathies in his personal system. He didn't jump in at all. He was jumped ON. All the same, he and the rest of the Communists are in it, and, though by no choice of their own, on the same side that the democracies are on.

At the outset both John Bull and Uncle Sam were at pains to make it clear that they're not pro-Russian because they're pro-Communist but because they're anti-Axis—more so than they're anti-Communistic just at present.

Distinction Fades.

Will it rediscover itself if democracy triumphs over Nazism, Fascism, Falangism and whatever kind of an "ism" Japan's afflicted with? Will the democracies say, "Now that those 'isms' are extinguished, we'll go back to concentrating our hostility on still surviving Communism — which helped us in an emergency?"

Perhaps Joe's scrappers will keep the Axis chaps tied up until he and the democracies will have had time to demolish 'em, but he'll still be doing Communistic business in Moscow.

Then, indebted to him as they'll be, won't it be rather difficult for the democracies to turn around and rend him?

It isn't alone that Joe's democratically useful against Herr Hitler and such little aid as Signor Mussolini can lend to the latter. Russia's a damper on the Japs likewise. They're manifestly leery of what he's liable to do to 'em from the northward if they become overly involved in the direction of Singapore, the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies. They bluff, but Joe worries 'em.

All would be lovely if the Russians could be gambled on to muss up the Axis program indefinitely and then revolute against Josef.

But will they do it?

If not, and Joe's been superhelpful to 'em meanwhile, what'll the democracies do to him later? He'll still be a monster, but they'll find it darned hard to treat him like one, in such an eventuality.

Listen World!

Be Enthusiastic!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IF I COULD have my choice, I'd rather work with one genuinely enthusiastic person than with a dozen geniuses, heroes or budding saints.

Reams have been written about the beauty of various virtues which, though undoubtedly admirable, are apt to become a big snug in the neck band. But when it comes to downright pleasant, practical cooperation, you can make mine Enthusiasm, every time. Talk about transfusions. Contact with a real Enthusiast will do more to revive shattered self-respect and bedraggled faith than a whole Blood Bank.

Get me right, though. By Enthusiasts, I am NOT referring to those palpitating Pollyannas who plaster sweetness and light all over the place like discarded wads of gum. Such creatures are frank exhibitionists with a carefully calculated act. Each conscious smirk . . . each trill and tootle . . . is self-serving.

Thanks be, a true Enthusiast has nothing in common with such ersatz substitutes. There's no pose nor pretense in his genuine enjoyment. He is simply a warm, generous human being, so honestly pleased with life that he passes his joy along spontaneously—often unconsciously.

Nor is this — as is popularly supposed—due to a "natural disposition." Like our other virtues, Enthusiasm can be and generally is developed deliberately. There's no trick about it. It's simply a matter of viewpoint . . . of broadening one's interest, curiosity and delight until they include every angle of the Big Parade instead of being focused on purely personal problems.

I'm thinking of two girls who worked with me once. They were both bright, attractive youngsters, of about the same age, living in similar rather drab environments. They took the same car each morning—walked down the same streets. To Marion that morning walk — indeed, everything connected with her existence—was hopelessly dull. She wasn't resentful or rebellious—simply empty, with an indifference as draining as some deadly disease.

On the other hand, Lois, during that same, brief trip, discovered sufficient drama, comedy, pathos and mystery to charge her whole life with excitement and ever widening interest. She had friends by the score . . . enough plots and counterplots to supply all Hollywood. She made no particular effort to be enthusiastic. She was simply so exhilerated by life that she spilled over and quickened everyone with whom she came in contact.

Yet five years before she had been a sickly, listless girl without friends or without any vital curiosity about life. Then a fine doctor became interested in her. Slowly, with infinite patience and understanding, he showed her how to use her eyes, open her heart . . . ask questions . . . search for the story that lay beneath each passing spectacle.

Presently, without ever putting it into words, he had made her realize that enthusiasm was not only a service to herself but a duty to her world. Now no day is long enough to hold all the magic Lois finds waiting around every shabby corner.

THERE'S NO LACK OF COLOR IN LIFE, NO DEARTH OF EXCITEMENT. IF WE ARE BORED, THE LACK IS IN US, NOT IN THE WORLD AROUND US. HOWEVER POOR WE MAY BE, HOWEVER HANDICAPPED THERE'S AN ENDLESS SUPPLY OF BEAUTY, WONDER AND AMAZEMENT IF WE'LL ONLY OPEN OUR EYES — REACH OUT OUR HANDS.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

British Studying Invasion Plans, Eye Holland, Norway and Spain

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Reports that Harry Hopkins, Josef Stalin, Winston Churchill and Franklin Roosevelt during the past two weeks have been discussing the idea of a British invasion of the European continent, have an important inside background.

Plans for a British landing force in Holland, Spain or Norway, actually have been discussed ever since Germany invaded Russia on June 21. But all of them, for one reason or another, so far have been rejected.

Behind these discussions is the obvious fact that Russia has a far better chance of standing up against the Nazi war machine if Hitler has to fight on two fronts. So far, part of Hitler's success has been his ability to pick off one country at a time, while the others stood around watching.

Now, everyone is standing around watching Russia. But the British realize that although the Red army is putting up far stiffer resistance than anticipated, they, the British, are going to be completely out of luck if the Russians crumble. That is why the Japanese have moved in such cocksure fashion in the direction of Singapore, apparently confident that Russia will be defeated and that they can pounce on India from one side, Hitler from the other.

* * *

Invasion of Holland.

FIRST plan for an invasion of the continent was a landing in Holland. This, it was figured, would get sympathetic support from the Dutch; would create a second front requiring Hitler to divert part of his troops and airplanes from the Russian front.

The orginal British idea was to have the United States co-operate in a landing force. This, however, scarcely got beyond the informal suggestion stage. It was immediately and emphatically vetoed, first, for political reasons; second, because Roosevelt did not have the power to send troops abroad; third, because of the scarcity of shipping to transport and supply an American army overseas.

Since then, none of the proposals for creating a second European front has contemplated any American participation.

The second idea discussed was a British attempt through Spain and Portugal. This also scarcely got beyond the discussion stage, because it was figured, first, that the German army probably could take over Spain by the time British troops began to land; second, that even if a foothold could be obtained, a march across the Pyrenees to France would be too difficult.

The only part which the United States might have played in such a plan was to send food ships with which to help win over the Spanish population.

* * *

Heavily Fortified.

SINCE then another plan for possible British invasion of Norway has been discussed. However, this also is difficult. The Nazis now have ten divisions in Norway; more important, they have been working feverishly with characteristic German thoroughness to fortify Norwegian ports and possible invasion points.

The chief factor holding back the British, however, has been their lack of armored equipment. Although the British army is about 2,000,000 strong, only about 750,000 are fully armed with modern equipment. And the most serious defect in their equipment is the lack of tanks.

Vast numbers of tanks were lost by the British at Dunquerque, a loss which has not yet been replenished. And no invasion of the continent could be successful without a powerful tank force.

Also, despite the strength of the Nazi army on the Russian front, a total of 47 well equipped German divisions are stationed in western Europe. This is approximately 700,000 men.

Recent discussion of British aid to Russia has turned to the Near East and a British move from the Gulf of Persia, through Iran to the Russian oil fields of the Caucasus. These oil fields are one of the chief goals of the Nazi army, and once Hitler succeeds in taking the Ukraine, it would be relatively easy for him to cut off the Caucasus oil wells from the rest of Russia.

Inside reports are that Russia, while anxious for, in fact urging British co-operation, does not consider this move in the Caucasus to be enough.

* * *

Bibs and Tuckers.

NOTHING is being said about it, but defense chiefs are sounding out manufacturers on cutting down the number of styles and models of men's and women's clothing and shoes. Purpose would be to save urgently needed raw materials and to simplify price control by having fewer commodities to price.

The bureau of labor statistics is studying the experience of the World War Industries board, which perhaps foreshadows what lies ahead.

For example, a report on the shoe industry shows that hide and leather prices skyrocketed in 1917-18, just as they did recently until Defense Price Administrator Leon Henderson imposed a ceiling. Ultimately the entire shoe industry, including manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, was placed under strict control.

Manufacturers in the last war were required to limit the colors of shoes to black, white, and one shade of tan. New styles were tabooed, and varieties and patterns were cut two-thirds. Large shoe factories ordinarily make about 500 styles of women's shoes and about 60 of men's. All shoes were reduced to four general price classes, which retailed from below $3 to not more than $12.

The plan didn't get into full operation until near the end of the war, but in that short time tremendous amounts of leather were saved for military purposes.

Note — Men's low shoes first gained popularity during the World war, when it was considered patriotic to buy Oxfords instead of high shoes in order to save leather.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—For eye appeal, Xavier Cugat puts on a bang-up show. The Spaniard has a first class organization, with plenty of frills and maneuvers that mean absolutely nothing to the quality of his music, but the spectators eat it up. Cugat now has monopolized interest at the Waldorf-Astoria for half a dozen years.

In winter, it is at the famed Sert Room, which probably is the nicest single room east of the Mississippi. And in summer, when the sidewalks broil and the nights are limpid and lackluster, it is at the Starlight Roof where Xavier and his fiddle, his frilly-shirted Cubans, his gourd thumpers and rhumba hounds do a brisk trade in entertaining the customers.

For one thing, there is always a breeze there, and whether it is artificial or not I have never been able to ascertain, but I do know that you come away with the impression that that breeze was put there just for you.

For another, the lights are just right, neither too dim nor too bright. For a third, Cugat himself is good company. He's a fine caricaturist, one of the best, and if anyone asks him for an autograph, he sketches a caricature of himself on a menu and presents it to you. At the moment Cugat is illustrating a book and he is working very hard at it. He does an illustration a day.

* * *

CUGAT also takes time out occasionally to rail (but good-naturedly) at swing bands who swing the congas and rhumbas.

In protest recently he made a conga out of the Hut-Sut Song. As Cugat plays it, the Hut-Sut now stands out like the imprint of lipstick on a bald head.

"After all," he says, "you've got to do something to get even with those guys."

The prettiest dancer I ever saw at the Starlight Roof was Loretta Young. She was dressed in something that was pale blue and she seemed to float on the air. The most enthusiastic American I ever saw there was Irving Berlin. The most gratifying sight I ever saw there was a filet mignon garnished with mushrooms and souffle potatoes. There I go again, thinking about food. . . .

Most of Cugat's friends call him Xavey. . . . He was born in Barcelona, drives a special-model car, and wears a beret. . . . He's a top-notch swimmer, and he has two brothers who are topnotch artists.

Cugat's love of caricaturing people about got him into trouble. . . . A woman sued him because she didn't like his pen and ink impressions of her. . . . But Cugat won the case. . . . Thursday's are busy days for him, because he rehearses all day, and goes on the air that night, in addition to his regular dancing stint. . . . He used to have 12 dogs but now has only two—a shepherd and a peke. . . . They live at the hotel with him. . . . In canine fancy, he follows no set breed. All dogs are fine, he explains.

* * *

The color schemes in the fruit markets of Sixth avenue is now plum and peach . . . Meaning all those new shipments from California, Georgia and Florida are arriving. . . . I have seen peaches in New York advertised for a dollar each . . . But they were from South America, and were put out to attract idiots.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

". . . then you'll have to go next door and borrow an egg."

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

On Thinking Back.

There is no use in thinking back
When that brings pain or tears,
Today is short and has its own
Griefs, to be borne. Its fears,

Its heartaches, these enough, in deed,
For any life to bear,
So futile bringing from the past
Old times of weary care.

Bring back but happy visions, let
The dreary drop below
The memory's horizon and
Be lost in long ago.

A Farmer's Diary

At a Roadside Park

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE other evening at dusk, I parked beside a lovely wooded roadside park and went to get a drink of water. A row of cars was in the parking space, and a column of blue smoke rose over the trees and lazily spread out in the still air. The fragrance of burning wood drifted down to where I was and the rich odor brought me happy memories. As a youth that fragrance clung to my clothes, and always it will linger in my heart.

I heard laughter, and the distant murmur of voices. A dozen youngsters were grouped in a circle around one of the grills. I saw the flickering firelight as the door was opened to put in more wood. Then I heard and smelled the sizzling of steak. An aged tramp, who had dropped down beside the fence, just outside the enclosure where I stood, sniffed and licked his grizzled lips. Two dogs slunk quietly across the adjacent field and wriggled beneath the fence.

Upon a knoll, in a little low-roofed structure enclosed by barkless posts and floored, another group of visitors had gathered for worship—or choir practise. Their members more than filled the space—some sat on logs outside. They sang in subdued voices, three hymns, and the rich sweet tones floated over the countryside. "The groves were God's first temples"—they still inspire to worship I thought. The very atmosphere of this rustic place seemed full of peace and goodness.

No more than a half hour was I there, and I knew none of the other visitors, yet I felt rested and refreshed and helped. Upon the post beside the pump a register hung, where the long list of names showed that all day the place had been frequented by passers-by.

A man with the air of a caretaker, came and changed the sheet putting in a clean one for tomorrow.

"You work here?" I asked.

"This was my grove—I leased it to the state for 99 years. I have a few hours' work a week, at a fair rate, taking care of it. It does more people good this way, I think, and it is a pleasure to me to see how folks seem to enjoy it."

CITY DEBATING ON REMOVAL OF OLD CAR RAILS

Crafton Says Bids Are Being Studied To Tear Up Lines on Three Streets.

The possible removal of old street car rails from Mansfield streets as a traffic safety move is being considered seriously by the city, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton announced today.

When Councilman George C. Kyle arose in council meeting last Tuesday night and asked that the service director be requested to call for bids on the rails, Crafton informed council he was already working on the problem.

Crafton said that he had already contacted several firms but that it did not appear that the city could get enough money from the sale of the rails to cover the cost of replacing the street pavement around the rails.

A Cincinnati firm which is seeking the steel in the rails for a South American customer has informed Crafton that it will send a representative here in the next few weeks to make an estimate of the value of the city's rails.

City Engineer W. C. Statler estimates there are about 28,000 feet of rail still buried in the streets which, when reduced to poundage, would give approximately 20 tons of steel. Statler figures this should sell for about $6,200.

Crafton said he does not feel that this will pay for the necessary street replacement. To remove the rails, workers would have to dig back about 12 inches on each side of the rail, the director stated.

Rails still remain on Park avenue west, Bowman street and South Main street.

Film Producer Aims Blow At Double Features

HOLLYWOOD —(INS)— Long a pioneer in film length experimentation, David O. Selznick has announced a complete departure in motion picture form which he declares will fill a long-standing need and at the same time deal a blow to double features.

Selznick, famed producer of "Gone With the Wind," is planning on producing groups of classics of varying length to be presented jointly or as supplementary entertainment. The first groups will be entitled "Tales of Mystery and Imagination" and "Tales of Passion and Romance."

They will vary in length from 500 feet to 5,000 feet, with the average probably at 3,000 feet. The famed "Gone With the Wind" measured 20,506 feet and was the longest picture ever made.

Meat Loaves For Weekends Are Popular

By BETSY NEWMAN

There is nothing much that substitutes for a good meat loaf if you are planning a weekend at the summer cottage and don't wish to do much cooking when you get there. Make either of these loaves, which may be served hot or sliced cold, as suits your needs. One combines two meats, you see, the other meat and vegetable. A good cake is also a help in such a situation.

Today's Menu.

Veal and Ham Loaf or Carrot and Beef Loaf
Corn on the Cob
Tossed Green Salad
Pickles Olives
Rolls or Bread and Butter
Fluffy Coffee Layer Cake
Coffee

* * *

Veal and Ham Loaf.

1½ lbs. veal, ground
½ lb. ground ham
2 eggs
1 cup dried bread crumbs
Dash nutmeg
Juice 1 lemon
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt

Combine ingredients in order named and shape into loaf. Put in greased pan, dot with bacon or ham fat and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 45 minutes to 1 hour.

* * *

Carrot and Beef Loaf.

1 lb. ground beef
½ cup dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 egg
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1-16 teaspoon pepper
½ to ¾ cup milk
2 grated carrots

Combine ingredients in order given and blend together lightly but thoroughly. Shape into loaf and place in greased pan, dot top with bacon fat and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for about 1 hour. Serve hot or cold.

* * *

Mocha Frosting.

4 tablespoons butter
½ cup cocoa
½ cup cold strong coffee
½ teaspoon vanilla
4½ cups sifted confectioner's sugar

Cream butter, add cocoa and blend well, then add sugar alternately with coffee and beat until smooth. Fold in vanilla.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Indeed, I do remember very clearly what I told you, Mary," I said. "I passed on to you something which my own mother told me years ago."

I halted with the lump in my throat always brought to me by the memory of my idolized little mother, gone away from me forever before I ever met Dicky. As clearly as if she were still speaking, I could hear her voice with its words of wise counsel.

"When you marry, Margaret, darling," she had said, "if you find that you cannot live with your husband, leave him. But as long as you are together as husband and wife, never let a word of criticism of him pass your lips, even to me. You will have quarrels, of course. Most married people do.

"But there are also wonderful reconciliations. Do not spoil those moments of forgiveness by the recollection that you have told anyone, even your mother, about your quarrel, or even that you have differed."

Mary Ashamed.

"You put it in beautiful language," Mary said, interrupting my reverie, "but said crassly it would be 'put up or shut up' I never have forgotten it, and that is why I cannot tell you one of the reasons—but only one, remember; the other is more important—why I staged that stunt with Stevie. It was abominable, I grant you, and I'm awfully ashamed of myself, yet I did have what I thought was some justification."

"Noel thinks so, too," I said quietly.

She leaned forward and stared at me, her eyes quickened with excitement.

"Do you mean he told you things when you so cleverly got him away from the party?" she demanded.

"He was very contrite," I said. "He accused himself of neglecting you, and of being 'stand-offish'—that was the word he used—and he implied that he had been treating you to some rags, also."

"As to that, 'the deponent saith not'," Mary quoted.

"I don't want you to admit or deny anything," I told her quickly. "But at the risk of breaking a confidence, I must tell you Noel feels very strongly that his career is nothing beside yours. He referred to himself as a 'tame canary,' and said that people in the cast were speaking of him as 'Mary Veritzen's husband'."

"Oh, the poor darling!" Mary exclaimed. "I hadn't heard that."

I wanted to say: "Why didn't you?" but I considered that I had administered enough punishment for the day, indeed for all time, and Mary rushed on.

"That must be particularly hellish for him," she said. "But unless I throw up my role, I don't see what I can do about it."

Her face set itself in sudden resolute lines.

Would Sacrifice Herself.

"But I will throw up my role rather than have him hurt," she said. "His happiness comes first."

I knew that she meant the words while she was speaking them. But I also knew that if ever, in theatrical parlance, there was "a born trouper," Mary was one. The theater was in the very marrow of her. She would not be complete without it.

The husband who would accept such a sacrifice from her would be risking the loss of her love, when in after years she should realize that he would not make an equal sacrifice for her.

"I'll tell Father Veritzen right now," she said. "I know he's up. Do you mind if I telephone him and ask him to come over for a minute, or to let me go over there?"

I should not have been surprised at the fervor of martyrdom which her eyes held. Mary always has been most intense in everything she does. And I could see that she was enthusiastically tying herself to the stake, and preparing for the lighted fagots to sear her soul.

Urges Mary To Wait.

I did not know exactly how I was to get her untied, but loosen her I must, before she should get in contact with her father-in-law. I could imagine how Jovian would be his wrath at such a proposal from his young daughter-in-law, upon whose genius he had staked so much, in spite of her being at the time a tyro.

"Mary!" I said desperately, snatching at the first chance of salvaging the situation, "are you going to make Noel my enemy for life? Remember that what I just told you was a repeated confidence from him, one which I had no business repeating. Won't you wait until you can get that word from Noel, himself, before you do anything drastic?"

Mother-In-Law Proved to Be Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Behold, an original contribution concerning mothers-in-law! In an on-and-off fashion, this column has been open to readers to get their in-law reactions off their chests. Some in-laws have proved to be angels in disguise; others, according to correspondents, seem to have slipped the lock and escaped the lower regions.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Along with my trousseau I'm afraid I packed up a chip ready for shoulder-wear in regard to my husband's family. I lived in a different town from them. They came to my wedding and I sort of looked down my nose at them, especially my husband's mother.

"It wasn't that she hadn't been decent and friendly and courteous when our engagement was announced, but the very name of mother-in-law spelled battle, murder and sudden death to me.

"Tom and I had our own little home—a two-room, bathroom and kitchenette flat, in the same town with his family. Mother-in-law called. I treated her politely but kept her at arm's length. Tom isn't easy to get along with, not only at home but in business. When we had been married six months and I was expecting my baby, he lost his job.

"My mother-in-law came across with a secret hoard of her own savings, some of which she had made by taking orders for preserves, jelly, cake and homemade bread, and knitting sports suits, through the Woman's Exchange. The rest she had saved, a dime at a time, in little household economies.

"She came over in the nicest, friendliest way and said: 'This is something between you and me; we're just two women together and we're going to leave the menfolk out of this. You're going to have a baby—my first grandchild—I don't want you to be worried about rent or paying bills. You take this little sum which I've managed to save and when money problems get tight you'll be able to face them.'

"Naturally, I hesitated, because I had been very stand-offish with my mother-in-law, and when I saw her real kindness, I had a hard time to keep from crying.

"Then she said: 'The important thing for a woman who's going to have a baby is for her to be happy. It's bad for a child to come into the world handicapped before the fight has really begun, by a feeling of not having been wanted, distrust and all the things an unhappy mother can hand on. You take this little sum and if your baby comes here a happy child, I shall be more than repaid.'

"That was the beginning of a love which is equal to that I feel for my own mother. We weathered that storm. The baby is now five years old, and a happier, more flourishing child could not be found from Maine to California.

"Contrite Daughter-in-Law."

This letter speaks for itself. Nothing I could add would make more plain the folly of a young bride going into a family with a chip on her shoulder. Contrary to tradition, the jokesmiths, all the old wheezies about the iniquities of a mother-in-law, hers proved to be her best friend. Let's hear more about mothers-in-law who are pretty good sisters, after all.

Fluffy Coffee Layer Cake.

½ cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs
3 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup strong coffee

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift flour, all-phosphate baking powder and salt together, and add to first mixture alternately with coffee. Beat until smooth. Pour into greased 9-inch layer cake pans and bake in moderate oven (375° F.) for 25 minutes. When cool, ice with Mocha Frosting.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TAKE THAT ONE CHANCE

Your defensive play at rubber bridge should be concentrated primarily upon beating the opposing contract. That sounds like a platitude, but it is amazing how many players seem not to realize it. A lot of otherwise good cardsmen seem afraid to make a try which, if it fails, may hand the declarer an extra trick or two on a silver platter. Who cares about those extra tricks, if risking them preserves your only remote chance to beat his contract. Make your effort, and if it costs an extra trick or two, at least you have the satisfaction of knowing you did not give up while there was yet hope.

West led his heart 7 to the 10 and J. and South immediately went to work on the clubs, leading the 9. West waited for the third round, then took his A, cashed his heart A and then led the 6 to the K. South proceeded then to run off the rest of the clubs and the diamonds, the diamond K, of course, being an entry for the clubs. Thus he scored two tricks in hearts and four each in the minors for ten tricks all told.

When West was in the lead with the club A, he should have realized his only sound chance to set the contract was to put East in the lead and receive a heart return. To do this, he obviously could not use a club. The diamonds were very unlikely because South bid them. The best chance was in spades. Just notice what would have happened if West had then led a spade to the A. East would have returned his heart 2 through the K, and West would have run the heart suit, the side scoring a total of eight tricks and setting the contract four.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Aug. 14.

Matters old and new continue to forge ahead with satisfactory promise, judging by interesting planetary testimonies. The mentality will be found keyed to high powers of initiative and enterprise, with business, financial and professional activities moving on to satisfactory goals. Perhaps legal or property interests may enjoy increase and stability under an expansive and solidifying astral influence. It is propitious for seeking security and position, as well as prestige and personal popularity, but sign all writings with caution and in intimate contacts use prudence, shunning all excesses and indiscretions.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of sound and expansive conditions with all affairs moving on to enduring success and financial security. Property values may increase and gain stability, while the legal, professional, or social standing may be happily enhanced. But social and intimate relations demand circumspect conduct, while writings, signatures, etc., call for particular attention, lest there be loss, trickery and disrepute or gossip.

A child born on this day will have splendid mentality and business energies, with much promise of success, although its career may be negatived by some want of principle, as well as social indiscretions or personal excesses.

Balanced Diet Is Remedy for Enlarged Pores

By MME. QUI VIVE

Fate has not dealt kindly with the woman whose skin is of coarse texture. Or perhaps fate had nothing to do with it. Possibly she had a complexion like the lily and the rose in her younger days, with the normal surface of fine fabric. Conditions do contribute to these changes. Women who have been faithful to their beauty duties are seldom so afflicted. Men and women who love the good things of the table, partake of too much heavy foods, like meats, rich sauces and pastries, often suffer from changes in the epidermal surface, pores becoming larger, a florid state taking permanent residence. More and more are we finding out that the balanced diet is a first-class cosmetic.

To reform a skin that has gone pitted is no easy task. Such skins are usually oily, so it is advisable to ease up the activities of the sebaceous glands by cutting down on foods that contain fats, which seem to make them mad and excited. Orange and tomato juice taken daily will help; green salads are recommended. They're good for one; no matter what the state of the complexion may be.

The use of oily cosmetics should be restricted, just enough should be applied each day to keep the skin surface from becoming rough. They should not remain on overnight, a good practice if the skin is excessively dry, but not when it is oily.

The less hot water used the better. Moist heat is relaxing to the skin. When using soap, have the water just warm enough to form a suds. Remove the soap with tepid water, then dash on cold water or whisk an ice cube over the countenance. Ice rubs twice a day will do a lot toward contracting enlarged pores. Ice cold compresses are helpful. Dip a cloth in cold water, wring it out, place over the face, holding it tight with the hands until the flesh begins to glow and repeat. This treatment brings a quick reaction of the blood streams so that, if sluggish circulation is at fault, there will develop a surface of finer texture.

As added torment, coarse skins are often beset with blackheads, in which event a clay pack once a week should be on the beauty program.

From your druggist get a few ounces of kaolin, which is refined Fuller's earth, a cleansing agent that is effective. Take two tablespoonfuls of the powder, add enough witch hazel to form a paste the consistency of whipped cream. Apply to a clean skin surface, spreading on a light film.

Piqua Girl Was Constantly In Trouble, Now Jolo Is Her Favorite Medicine

"Says She Suffered From Chronic Constipation and Serious Indigestion. Bothered With Many Distressing Stomach Symptoms."

There is nothing that can so quickly undermine your health, strength and energy as constipation. Why suffer any longer from this common ailment, do as thousands are doing every day—Try JOLO and get amazing results.

Miss Ruby Knick, 8 years old, daughter of Mr. Charles Knick, of 423 First street, Piqua, Ohio, states:

MISS RUBY KNICK

"My father gave me everything imaginable for me as I was bothered with constipation and indigestion all the time. I had to take laxatives most every night which wasn't very pleasant. I looked well but I was restless and would roll around in bed at night and felt tired in the morning. I got so my school work would bother me and nervous. Then my father read about Jolo and got me a bottle. Now I feel alert and active during my playtime or school hours. My school work seems easier and I have a much happier disposition.

"Everyone says I look the picture of health. I will give Jolo a good endorsement which is my favorite medicine, in fact, our favorite medicine in our home."

Love Will Come Again + + +

By Alma Sioux Scarberry

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER II

"I'll crawl in beside you, darling," she laughed shakily, "and we'll have a big love. Wait till Mommy slips out of her dress. You must tell me everything that happened. Did you miss me?"

Kenny's large blue eyes filled with tears. His small chin trembled.

"I cried lots for you Mommy. When Aunt Gay didn't see me. She was very good to me, but I don't want you to go 'way again, not ever."

April climbed into his bed and took him in her arms. She cradled his blond head to her breast and said through her tears:

"I won't darling. Not ever again. Mother had to go away this time. But I'll stay home after this. I promise."

* * *

It seemed to April that in the seven weeks since she had been in Reno, Kenny looked even more like his father than he had before. The same blond curly hair and deep blue eyes, and he was strong and sturdy like Hill. There was none of her dark slender beauty about the boy. He was all Hillyer.

How can I bear it? She asked herself, holding her son close. And for a moment she was overwhelmed with the tragedy that had befallen her home. As if reading her thoughts the child asked suddenly:

"Mommy, what is a deevorce."

Stunned, April held him a little closer, parrying for time. She was unprepared to answer. It had never occurred to her he was old enough to ask questions. Kenny went on urgently:

"Marfy, that girl next door, said you went to Reno to get a deevorce. Did you bring it back with you, Mommy? Could I see it?"

"I—it's nothing to see, darling," April smoothed his curls with her trembling hand. "I—it's just a piece of paper. You—couldn't read it, sweet."

Kenny persisted: "But what IS it, Mommy?"

Fumbling, April tried to explain to her five year old son that his mother and father were no longer married. That is what it meant. When two people could no longer live together happily they got a divorce.

When she had finished Kenny sat up in bed, looking down at her with large, puzzled eyes. His bewildered look cut through her heart like a knife.

"My daddy—isn't going to live with us any more?" he asked, his chin trembling.

April shook her head, unable to speak. He said in an awed voice:

"Then I haven't got a daddy any more. Have I?"

"Oh, yes, darling," April choked turning her face to her pillow. "Of course you have a daddy."

Kenny said solemnly: "Not if we deevorced him."

* * *

It was fortunate that Hyacinthe, the colored maid, came in at that time to get Kenny and dress him and give him his breakfast. Hyacinthe had been a family servant of the Lind's in Virginia and had been sent to New York by April's mother before Kenny was born. She was utterly devoted and when she saw April's grief her black face wrinkled with sympathy:

"There, there, honey," she patted April's head. "You jes res' for a little while and Hyacinthe take her big boy an' show him de li'l robin cats nestin' in de back ya'd, after he done et his breakfas'."

The old colored woman had a genius for handling children, and Kenny kissed his mother and allowed Hyacinthe to pick him up and carry him out of the room without a protest. A little later he told the maid solemnly:

"Did you know, Hyacinthe, I have no daddy any more? We deevorced him."

Everyone Kenny met for days afterward was given the same information in an awed, solemn voice:

"I have no Daddy. We deevorced him."

April wept bitterly for awhile after Hyacinthe had taken Kenny from the room, finally falling into an exhausted slumber. It was noon when she awakened, surprised that she had slept more than four hours. Gay knocked when she heard April walking about, and went in to tell her the news.

"Brace yourself for a shock," Gay threw herself down in a chair by the window. "The problem child is in town."

April looked puzzled. "I mean," Gay sighed, "Cherry has come to New York to carve out a career. And incidentally to carve up a few millionaires, I guess. She wants to live here. I gave her my other twin bed."

April said blankly: "Oh, I wonder if mother knows where she is."

"I guess not," Gay said. "She has given up college and broken her engagement to Pat. She went out this morning to look for a job as a model. I didn't tell you when you came because I thought you'd better get some sleep first."

* * *

April loved her younger sister dearly. But her heart sank at the thought of the added responsibility of trying to manage Cherry in New York. Tall, lovely golden Cherry with the face of an angel and the wild, untamed heart of a gypsy.

"She's in a mad mood," Guy warned. "It all seems to have been brought about by your divorce. She says she'll never marry a struggling young lawyer like Pat. That if she's ever left holding the bag by a man like you, it'll be full of everything in the world she wants. I think you should ship her right back home."

April sighed: "That wouldn't help any. She wouldn't go. If she doesn't stay here she'll get into some kind of trouble. You know Cherry when she gets in a mood. We'd better humor her."

"Darling!" Gay protested. "You can't mother the whole world! Why don't you think of yourself for a change? Haven't you got your hands full enough as it is, with Kenny to raise and educate? Don't take on any more parasites."

Gay and April had been born and brought up in the same small town in Virginia, and they had been close friends all their lives. April felt she could not have gone through her marital break without the loyal friendship of the tall, red headed Gay. She was cheerful and full of good humor, but could speak her mind in no uncertain terms when the occasion arose.

Gay was more than attractive with her green eyes and white skin, and very popular with men. But at twenty-six had never married. It was simply, she said, because she had never met a man she trusted enough to fall in love with. April felt it was because Gay had seen the marriages of so many of her friends end in disaster.

April was trying to eat an afternoon breakfast and Gay was having her lunch when Hyacinthe came in with the paper and laid it beside April's plate.

"Yo' all bettah eat ever' thing honey," the old darky patted her cheek, "or Hyacinthe gom' spank you."

April smiled at her affectionately and opened the paper. It was then the second big blow of the day fell. For there on the front page was a picture of Hill sitting at a table in a night club with a woman, and the headline read:

"Drusilla Bayne, Wealthy, Thrice-Divorced 'Blond Bombshell' To Wed Kent Hillyer, Ex-Golf Champ."

* * *

"What's the matter," Gay asked, alarmed, seeing April's face blanch.

"It — can't be true," April gasped. "Look! A picture of Dru Bayne and Hill. It—says they're going to be married."

"Wh—what? Oh, it must be a publicity stunt. You know how Dru loves the headlines. Let me see?"

April handed the paper to Gay, tears filling her eyes.

"I—it's all my fault," she said unhappily. "If I hadn't done what I did last night at the airport, driving away with Curt De Witt."

"Stop it!" Gay said almost crossly. "Don't blame yourself for his damn foolishness. He's on his own now."

"But it is my fault," April persisted. "You know how jealous he is. He probably called Dru right afterward, and he was tight enough to do almost anything. You know she's always been crazy about him."

"Well let her have him!" Gay threw down the paper. "It would serve them both right! They'd be a fine pair!"

"But she'll ruin his life," April wailed. You know how selfish and unscrupulous she is! And Hill is such a child."

"Rot!" Gay exploded. "If he gets mixed up with a few gals like Dru Bayne he'll realize soon enough what a fool he was to lose you."

"Oh, what shall I do?" April asked desperately. "I've got to do something to stop him from marrying her."

"You'll stay out of this and let Hill work out his own salvation," Gay said firmly. "If you don't you'll be a great deal more sorry than you are now."

* * *

The door bell rang and Hyacinthe came into the dinette with a box. It was orchids from Curt De Witt. Gay was delighted that they had arrived at what she considered the psychological moment.

"They're lovely," April wiped her tears. "He's a grand person, isn't he?"

"He's got good taste in women—and orchids." Gay looked at the flowers half enviously. "Isn't it marvelous you met him?"

"I suppose so," April took the card from its envelope. "But I can't see it makes much difference."

"Keep that chin up, lovely lady," the card read in De Witt's hand writing. "I'll call you about three to see if you would like to dine and go to the opening of 'Sister Suzie' tonight. Don't disappoint me. Curt."

April handed the card to Gay, sighing.

"I couldn't bear to go now, after seeing the paper."

Gay got up: "You'll go if I have to chloroform you! How can you be such a nitwit? Sit here and bawl when you've got a chance to go out and have dinner and go to one of the biggest openings Broadway has ever seen. Don't talk like a martyr!"

In spite of April's protests Gay took matters into her own hands. She got out a new lipstick red chiffon evening gown of her own and insisted that April wear it.

"You'll look like a huzzy and no one will suspect you've got anything on your mind but how to land a millionaire," Gay grinned. "Here try it on," she took April by the shoulders. "It'll be longer on you, more formal."

* * *

April had a quiet taste in clothes. She wore plain tailored things always, with a distinguished air that made her look like a quaint little quaker. This was in keeping with her personality; the quiet charm of her voice and manner. She was so feminine and lady-like that it was always a surprise to people who did not know her well to find out she could accomplish almost any dificult task she set her hand to.

When she slipped into Gay's backless red gown it was so different from her own wardrobe that she could scarcely believe she was looking at herself. She laughed shakily:

"Oh, Gay! I can't go out in this."

"You look marvelous!" Gay enthused. "Don't be silly. It gives you color, and the Lord knows you can use a little of it. You've looked like a drooping lily. I'll do your hair up off your ears and you can wear my emerald set. You'll wow 'em."

In spite of the heaviness of her heart, April allowed Gay to have her own way. When Curt phoned at three she told him she would be ready at six.

* * *

Kenny was too excited with the idea of having his mother home to spend the entire afternoon playing in the back yard, and he was underfoot most of the time chattering or climbing into her arms to kiss her every few minutes.

Gay was relieved that Cherry hadn't got back before it was time for April to leave for the evening. Hyacinthe's eyes almost popped out of her kinky head when Gay paraded April into the kitchen after she had dressed her and done her black hair high on top of her head.

The lip stick red of the gown brought out the gardenia white of her lovely face, and the emeralds in her ears and at her throat gave sparkle to the wide gray eyes that had been filled with pain so long. Hyacinthe almost dropped the dish she was washing, exclaiming with a broad grin:

"Well, bless mah soul, honey! Yo' all ought to be in de movies. Ain't she de pretties' thing yo' evah laid eyes on Miss Gay?"

Beery Stars.

Wallace Beery in "The Bad Man," famous play of stage and screen, opens Thursday at the Ritz. The double-bill now showing has Robert Armstrong in "The Bride Wore Crutches," with Lionel Stander, Lynne Roberts and Edgar Kennedy as a headliner. "Double Date" with Edmund Lowe, Una Merkel and Peggy Moran is the second picture.

EXAM OPEN FOR HEAT TREATER

George H. Hoover, Mansfield civil service officer, today announced an open competition examination for the position of heat treater at either Wright field in Dayton or Paterson field in Fairfield.

Hoover said the position paid $1,860 and would be open to U. S. citizens with at least four years' progressive training or experience in heat-treating of ferrous and non-ferrous metals and alloys to produce required hardness, tensile strength and elongation.

Those wishing to apply for the examination were requested by Hoover to see him at the Mansfield post office.

More than one billion copies of the Bible have been printed.

Musical Show.

James Roosevelt's first Hollywood production, "Pot O' Gold," opening Thursday at the Park hinges its story on the whims of an eccentric millionaire who sells vitamized foods. His impecunious nephew and an equally impecunious dance band complicate his personal life as well as his radio broadcasts. James Stewart and Paulette Goddard furnish the romantic interest, Horace Heidt's dance band, the music, and Charles Winninger portrays the millionaire. Johnny Mack Brown has the role of a two-gun range rider hired to stop Indiar and outlaw attacks on pony express riders in the second production, "Pony Post."

GEN. JOHNSON:

By. GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—Here is a fan letter: "I hate to say this but I feel that you have let us down in not insisting that draftees be discharged after one year's service. Many of your friends feel the same way.

I don't always have a chance to read your column. Sometimes I don't see daily papers and sometimes I am not in a place where you are published.

"I know that you boosted the selective draft from the beginning. But we were told that it was to be for one year's 'training.' I had several causes for claiming exemption. I had a good job in what is now called a defense industry. My boss promised he would hold it open for a year. I was engaged. My girl promised she would wait. I thought it was up to me to get myself ready for whatever might happen. Both of us believed that a year was not too much to sacrifice.

"But nobody told us that this willingness was to put us in a special class where, because of it, I would have to serve indefinitely.

"The press did not tell us. Our representatives in congress didn't tell us. Even you didn't tell us. We feel fooled." Etc.

There is not space to quote this letter in full. It is echoed in one way or another in scores of letters, but I chose this one because in its entirety it is well-reasoned, temperate and sincere.

First let me register an alibi. Over and over again this column warned of the jokers (if you want to call them that) in all the service bills to the effect that, if congress should declare the "national interest be imperilled," all classes—national guard, reservists and selectees could be held indefinitely. It warned but it did not protest.

If the national interest is imperilled, and obviously it is, there is no escape from this grim inequality of burdens.

* * *

I think my correspondent is quite right in saying that this provision in these laws was not given enough publicity and emphasis. In one of the most effective speeches in the recent debate on extension of these terms of service, Senator Vandenberg said something to the effect that some of the greatest frauds are put over in the "small type" in contracts. It is the business of legislators to read the small type and I can't recall that even the senator made much fuss about these lines which were in the draft act, the national guard act of 1920 (amended 1938) and public resolutions 75 and 96 governing the terms of service of various classes of civilian soldiery.

When war draws near, and once again I quote from ecclesiastics, "there is no discharge in that war."

The present debate and pending action in congress on extending the term of service by 12 or 18 months is just some more froth.

This may be bitter and unpopular reading to such young friends as my correspondent but it is the truth. Although it comes with the bark off, if I know our younger generation—and I have four of them in my own family—that is the way they want it.

Light Vote Marks Primaries In Ohio

THIS IS THE YEAR, IF YOU LIKE PEACHES

Bumper Harvest Predicted By Ohio Co-operative Crop Reporting Service.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — If peaches constitute your dish, Ohioans, this is your year.

The state's 1941 peach crop was estimated at 1,394,000 bushels today by the Ohio cooperative crop reporting service, more than three times the 443,000-bushel yield last year when the crop was unusually short.

Although the prospective peach yield was slated for the greatest increase, bumper crops of corn, wheat and other fruits were forecast.

Approximately 159,348,000 bushels of corn will be harvested, averaging 49 bushels an acre. The record average of 50 bushels an acre was set in 1939. The 1940 corn crop totaled 120,750,000 and the 10-year average was 139,956,000.

The estimated winter wheat harvest of 49,700,000 was an increase over last month's forecast. The average yield an acre was set at 25 bushels, highest since the yield of 29 bushels in 1931. Last year's harvest was 42,097,000 and the 10-year average 40,718,000 Oats were expected to average 42.5 bushels an acre, 1.5 short of the record of 1940.

Estimates of other crops, compared with 1940 yields (in parentheses) include:

Commercial apples, 7,264,000 bushels (5,074,000); pears, 996,000 bushels (816,000); grapes, 28,100 tons (37,500); sweet cherries 480 tons (380); and sour cherries 8,610 tons (6,800).

Forecasts for other crops with 1940 yield in parentheses were:

Potatoes, 11,128,000 bushels (11,800,000 in 1940 when more acreage was planted).

Sugar beets, 333,000 tons (375,000).

Oats, 47,855,000 bushels (44,880,000).

Barley, 1,947,000 bushels (1,650,000).

Rye, 1,558,000 (1,683,000).

Tame hay, 3,721,000 tons (4,241,000).

Burley tobacco, 11,250,000 pounds (12,300,000); and cigar filler tobacco, 13,524,000 pounds (15,876,000).

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield's Johnny Appleseed and John Simpson junior high schools and the new lights at Stadium Field are described as "a "typical application of up-to-date lighting" by a writer in the August issue of The Nation's Schools, a nationally circulated education magazine. With the article are pictures of the stadium lights during a football game, the John Simpson library and cafeteria, and a classroom at Johnny Appleseed junior high school. The article, written by W. H. Kahler, illuminating engineer for the Westinghouse lighting division, Cleveland, is entitled "Mansfield Sets An Example."

The aquarium at John Simpson junior high school is in an uproar these days and all because a little catfish was turned loose in the big bowl. The catfish, showing unexpected ferocity for its size, soon made quick work of the gold fish. Principal H. J. Dotson and John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board of education, thought it was a shame to let the catfish have the aquarium to himself so they dropped in several minnows. Too agile for the catfish, the minnows are still alive and growing so big that Dotson and Eisaman plan to take them along on their next fishing trip.

* * *

Not wanting to be outdone by her elders in their display of patriotism, little Mary Wymond, just three years old, gathered up the flags in front of the Precinct F, Third ward, voting booth at John Simpson Junior high school yesterday and marched up and down the sidewalk with them. Voting booth workers enjoyed the little girl's parade, but they had to bring the flags back to designate the location of the voting place.

* * *

Several Mansfield voters exercised their "write-in" privilege yesterday, but election board members guessed most of the names were put on the ballots more in fun than in an attempt to nominate another candidate. C. H. "Dutch" Bollman of the Ohio Public Service company received six votes for councilman-at-large, while Miss Mary Newcomer got one vote for council in the Second ward. One Democratic voter in the First ward marked every name on the ballot except the candidate for council, so the election board threw out the ballot. In the Second ward, Republican Councilman C. N. Shultz received one Democratic vote for council.

Mansfield was being searched today for additional scores of "The Mikado," for use by the Children's theater Friday night when the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera is presented at South park. Several copies which the organization was expecting did not arrive at the last minute and Mrs. Charles Anglin, who is training the singers, said that two or three scores would solve the problem.

BALLOT TOTAL LOWEST CAST IN 20 YEARS

Lutz and Haller Nominated In Ashland; Shreffler Ruled Out In Shelby Race.

The primary lull that kept voting in Mansfield down to the lowest mark in years yesterday was felt in cities throughout the state where the total vote was reported the lowest in 20 years.

Mansfield's total vote of 1,777 was less than nine per cent of the city's registration of approximately 21,000, while other cities cast equally light votes. In Lancaster, only 1,492 voters of a possible 11,000 went to the polls, and at Fremont, a city of 14,000 population, only 693 persons voted.

Mayoralty contests furnished the chief interest. At Akron, Mayor Lee D. Schroy, seeking a fourth term, held a 2-to-1 lead over his nearest rival in the Republican race. George J. Harter won the Democratic race with Walter J. Coyle, former city editor of the old Times-Press, running second.

Probably the heaviest vote of the day was cast in Dayton, where 25,000 persons went to the polls and defeated a charter amendment designed to provide additional money for the city operating fund.

At Massillon Jacob Sechler Coxey, "general" of his "armies" of unemployed in their marches on Washington in 1894 and 1914, finished last in a field of four in the Democratic primary for mayor. He received only 220 votes to the 771 cast for the successful candidate, Mayor Harry W. Lash.

Ashland made a better showing than most cities, however, turning out 2,307 votes to decide a heated mayoralty contest. Mayor Howard S. Lutz and Glenn B. Haller were nominated from a field of five, but Haller received nine more votes than the incumbent mayor. They will be opponents in the fall election.

The vote was Haller, 763, Lutz, 754; Arthur L. Vandedail, 434; Paul W. Fike, 271, and Clarence R. Keener, 59.

In the only other contest, Bryan A. Easterday, incumbent Fourth ward councilman, and Walter G. Straits were nominated for council in the Fourth ward, defeating Thomas B. Drake. The city has a charter government and nominates its candidate on a non-partisan ballot, the two highest candidates receiving the nominations.

At Shelby, a write-in campaign to place H. D. Shreffler, a theater operator, on the ballot for mayor against Mayor W. R. Morris, brought Shreffler 39 votes, but they will not be considered valid, Law Director Frank C. Long told the county board of elections today. Mayor Morris, a Republican, is seeking re-election on a non-partisan ballot. Unopposed, he received 179 votes.

Long said the charter form of government in Shelby makes no provision for writing in the names of would-be candidates. He added that Shreffler indicated he would not be interested in running even if his name could be put on the November ballot.

Three other men, including Bert Fix, veteran Sharon township clerk, received write-in votes for mayor.

Law Director Long polled 200 votes, while Atty. Theodore Lutz received two write-in votes for the same office.

Heading the ticket was Finance Director Chester P. Monn with 203 votes. Gail Haun received eight write-in votes for the nomination.

There are only two posts in the city for which there will be contests in the November election. For council-at-large, Arthur J. Spayde polled 126 votes yesterday to 115 for Wilbur Workman. In the Fourth ward, David Kinsell received 156 votes and David W. Cook, 87. In each case, both candidates will be on the November ballot.

A light vote was cast in Crestline where City Treasurer Albert P. Sonner won the Democratic nomination for mayor in the lone primary contest. He defeated C. Edward Ryan, 337 to 290.

Despite three Democratic contests at Galion, only 425 Democratic votes were cast in the city. Otto Pfeifer defeated Lawrence Neumann for the council president nomination, and G. C. Treisch was winner over O. W. Cronenwett in the First ward council contest. In the other contest, A. A. Connor, Harry Volk, and William Barr were nominated for the three council-at-large posts. The fourth man was William Kunkel.

Neither candidate for mayor had opposition. They are William Amann, former county commissioner, Democrat, and W. M. King, Republican, incumbent mayor.

Only 957 votes were cast in the Bucyrus primary, less than half the vote of two years ago. William F. Whiteamire won the Democratic nomination for mayor, defeating George Kingenberger, 657 to 182.

In the only other contest, Mrs. Esther Dobbins, city treasurer, won the Democratic nomination over Mrs. Nell Carrigan. Both are Democrats. The G. O. P. ticket will be headed by John W. Loomis, nominated for mayor without opposition.

BROADWAY

Miss Midnight's Notebook.

THE rag-chewers at a large table included Nicky Blair, who is Billy Rose's major-domo at the Diamond Horseshoe, and some miscellaneous gents with their beautiful dollies.

Along came a gent who stopped at the table and delved into the conversation. Ronnie Cunningham, the little dancing girl from "Panama Hattie," had read in Emily Post that it was polite to keep a conversation spinning by introducing topics of interest to one and all, so mindful of Nicky Blair she asked the newly arrived gent if he ever got around to the Diamond Horseshoe.

"Once in a while," he said.

"Do you know any of the girls there?" Miss Cunningham pursued politely.

"A few," said the gent. "I own the place."

And thereupon the gent, who was Billy Rose, departed wondering no doubt how a face that gets around as much as his—in the flesh and in photograph—could fail to get recognized by a little Broadway baby.

Lily Pons has just finished her 10th year of public performances in this country, but the diminutive diva still suffers from an odd form of stage fright—slight spells of dizziness preceding each performance.

Late in the afternoon of the day set for her recent Lewisohn stadium concert, Lily was in her room waiting for word from Mrs. Guggenheim as to whether or not the performance would take place, as rain had been threatened. Mrs. Guggenheim telephoned and reported that things were still uncertain.

"It doesn't matter now," Lily sighed. "I've had my dizzy spell already."

A movie producer, who shall be nameless because he would not like it to get out that he was a soft-hearted movie producer, waxed sentimental as he reported a tale proving that ambition is sometimes tempered by sentiment, ethics and loyalty.

He pointed out what the public seems to be well aware of: that there is no rhythm trio to top the Andrews Sisters. And they're moving further and further ahead on the strength of their record sales (approaching 5,000,000 discs) and their motion picture appearances with Abbott and Costello.

Their big goal, of course, is to do a picture of their own.

Well, they got that chance last week. Their studio called them in and tossed at them the script of a story made to order for them. It was called "Juke Box Jennie."

And the girls shook their heads. All three of them, in unison.

The studio couldn't quite figure out the ethics involved, but it boiled down to the fact that juke box owners don't like to have their coin machines called juke boxes, for some reason. And the Andrews girls, who were skyrocketed to fame and fortune when their disc of "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen" was spining in every machine in the land, knew how the juke box owners felt.

That was why they said no, thanks, to the studio—and risked what may be their only chance of ever staring in a picture of their own.

ILL TWO YEARS

Mrs. Elizabeth Hazlett, Member of Pioneer Family, Dies.

Mrs Elizabeth Douglass Hazlett, 88, died yesterday at her home in the Blymyer apartments, 71 Park avenue west, after an illness of nearly two years.

She was the daughter of the late John J. and Sophia Schrack Douglass. Born in a log cabin on the Douglass farm in Pleasant valley Sept. 11, 1853, her grandfather, Samuel Douglass, cleared the present Douglass farm.

She was the sister of the late A. A. Douglass and Judge S. M. Douglass, attorneys in Mansfield for many years.

Surviving is a daughter, Alberta Shearer, and one son, Blake Hazlett, both of Mansfield.

Two children, Olive Blanche and Augustus S. Hazlett, preceded her in death.

Mrs. Hazlett was a member of the First Lutheran church and Rev. Grover Swoyer of that church will conduct services tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Jones memorial home.

Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Nova Woman Was Life-Long Ashland County Resident.

ASHLAND—Mrs. Hattie Tedrow, 88, of Nova, a life-long resident of Ashland county, died today at her home in Nova.

Mrs Tedrow was born in Mifflin township Feb. 21, 1853. A resident of Nova for the past 24 years, she was a member of the Nova United Brethern church.

Mrs. Tedrow is survived by three daughters, Mrs. John Speck, of Nova; Mrs. Ida Gordon, of Ashland; and Mrs. Earl Daniels, of Barberton; four sons, Milo, of Birmingham, Ia., Clyde, of Sullivan, Charles, of Nova, and Ora Tedrow, of Ashland; 15 grandchildren, 19 great grandchildren, and two great great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the late home in Nova, Friday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Nova cemetery.

MAKES DEBUT WITH PLAYERS

Ten-Year-Old Niece of Madge Kinsey To Appear Tonight.

Patricia Travis, 10-year-old niece of Madge Kinsey, will play her first part here this season tonight, when the Madge Kinsey Players present "Sawdust Parent," under canvas on West Second street.

The same production will also be staged Thursday night. A new play, "Toby, the Milkmaid," is billed for Friday and Saturday nights.

STAGES SCRAP IRON CAMPAIGN

Middletown Collects Discarded Articles To Bolster Steel Supply.

(By United Press)

MIDDLETOWN — Scrap iron—like aluminum—today will be collected at Middletown, in a house-to-house campaign that probably will be the forerunner of a nation-wide drive for discarded articles of iron and steel to bolster the nation's dwindling steel supply.

The Middletown defense council sponsored the door-to-door drive for old stoves, radiators, skillets, lawn mowers, garden tools, wash tubs, worn-out plows, roller skates and similar wornout implements to alleviate the shortage of scrap iron at the American Rolling Mill company here.

Similar drives are planned at Ashland, Ky., and Catlettsburg, Ky.

Officials of Armco have contacted Cincinnati leaders in an effort to make that city the first metropolitan center in the nation to sponsor a scrap iron pickup campaign.

The Middletown defense council will collect the scrap in trucks with the aid of local firemen, the American Legion, boy scouts and Armco employes, all members of the recently-former Armco defense committee.

The collected scrap will be sold by the council to Armco at the prevailing market price and proceeds of the sale will be turned over to the United Service Organizations.

Armco officials revealed that one of the company's open hearth furnaces had been shut down because of a shortage of scrap iron and that others will discontinue operations unless an additional supply of scrap can be obtained.

NYA Members To Hear Judge At 'Inaugural'

Members of the Charles Mill Resident center of the National Youth Administration are going to further practice democracy Friday night at 7 p. m. when Probate Judge S. H. Cramer will help them inaugurate their new mayor, James Long of Prospect.

After a hectic election two weeks ago, Long, running on the Unionist party ticket, was elected mayor. Robert C. Young, one of the NYA supervisors for the camp, said the election and the program were designed to teach youth the processes and values of a democratic system of government.

Following time honored custom, Long appointed his aides last night, naming John Ransome, also of Prospect, safety commissioner; John Stafford, Millersburg, recreational commissioner; George Davidson, Bellefontaine, social director; James Whitfield, Columbus, prosecuting attorney; and Earl Curtis, Lima, canteen commissioner.

BARN BURNED

ASHLAND—A barn on the farm of Mrs. Ray Wharton of Ashland R. D. 5 four miles west of here burned this morning, the Ashland fire department reported.

Fire department members said the fire started while threshers were working in the barn this morning and destroyed a threshing machine, a quantity of grain and a straw stack at the side of the barn. The department did not know how the fire started.

PLAN TO FILM 'TIME OF YOUR LIFE' FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—William Saroyan, who put a $250,000 price tag on a pointless play so movie makers wouldn't pester him and then offered it to them free if the profits went to national defense, finally got a nibble today.

Lester Cowan, producer at Columbia studios, announced he would accept Saroyan's drama-less drama, "The Time Of Your Life," make it into a movie and give his proceeds to defense work.

"We'll see whether Saroyan meant what he said, or whether he was only making an idle gesture," Cowan said.

The 32-year-old Saroyan, who has been called by his enemies the bad boy of American letters and by his puzzled audiences the modern master of double talk, won the Pulitzer prize with "The Time Of Your Life." It is a kind of "Grand Hotel" of the cocktail lounges concerning itself with snatches of the lives of a dozen or so San Franciscans who drop into a saloon during the course of an evening. Its almost complete lack of plot scared away the movie makers, except for Cowan, who tried to buy it at a "reasonable" price months ago.

Saroyan wired him "nothing doing." He said that to get the job done right he'd have to produce it and direct it himself. Cowan threw up his hands. Other picture makers showed no interest in the play at any price.

Then last week, Saroyan bought a full page in Variety, the theatrical paper, offering his play to any producer who'd give the profits to America's defense effort.

Love Will Come Again + + +

By Alma Sioux Scarberry

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER II

"I'll crawl in beside you, darling," she laughed shakily, "and we'll have a big love. Wait till Mommy slips out of her dress. You must tell me everything that happened. Did you miss me?"

Kenny's large blue eyes filled with tears. His small chin trembled.

"I cried lots for you Mommy. When Aunt Gay didn't see me. She was very good to me, but I don't want you to go 'way again, not ever."

April climbed into his bed and took him in her arms. She cradled his blond head to her breast and said through her tears:

"I won't darling. Not ever again. Mother had to go away this time. But I'll stay home after this. I promise."

* * *

It seemed to April that in the seven weeks since she had been in Reno, Kenny looked even more like his father than he had before. The same blond curly hair and deep blue eyes, and he was strong and sturdy like Hill. There was none of her dark slender beauty about the boy. He was all Hillyer.

How can I bear it? She asked herself, holding her son close. And for a moment she was overwhelmed with the tragedy that had befallen her home. As if reading her thoughts the child asked suddenly:

"Mommy, what is a deevorce."

Stunned, April held him a little closer, parrying for time. She was unprepared to answer. It had never occurred to her he was old enough to ask questions. Kenny went on urgently:

"Marfy, that girl next door, said you went to Reno to get a deevorce. Did you bring it back with you, Mommy? Could I see it?"

"I—it's nothing to see, darling." April smoothed his curls with her trembling hand. "I—it's just a piece of paper. You—couldn't read it, sweet."

Kenny persisted: "But what IS it, Mommy?"

Fumbling, April tried to explain to her five year old son that his mother and father were no longer married. That is what it meant. When two people could no longer live together happily they got a divorce.

When she had finished Kenny sat up in bed, looking down at her with large, puzzled eyes. His bewildered look cut through her heart like a knife.

"My daddy—isn't going to live with us any more?" he asked, his chin trembling.

April shook her head, unable to speak. He said in an awed voice:

"Then I haven't got a daddy any more. Have I?"

"Oh, yes, darling," April choked, turning her face to her pillow. "Of course you have a daddy."

Kenny said solemnly: "Not if we deevorced him."

* * *

It was fortunate that Hyacinthe, the colored maid, came in at that time to get Kenny and dress him and give him his breakfast. Hyacinthe had been a family servant of the Lind's in Virginia and had been sent to New York by April's mother before Kenny was born. She was utterly devoted and when she saw April's grief her black face wrinkled with sympathy:

"There, there, honey" she patted April's head. "You jes res' for a little while and Hyacinthe take her big boy an' show him de li'l robin dats nestin' in de back ya'd, after he done et his breakfas'."

The old colored woman had a genius for handling children, and Kenny kissed his mother and allowed Hyacinthe to pick him up and carry him out of the room without a protest. A little later he told the maid solemnly.

"Did you know, Hyacinthe, I have no daddy any more? We deevorced him."

Everyone Kenny met for days afterward was given the same information in an awed, solemn voice:

"I have no Daddy We deevorced him."

April wept bitterly for awhile after Hyacinthe had taken Kenny from the room, finally falling into an exhausted slumber It was noon when she awakened, surprised that she had slept more than four hours. Gay knocked when she heard April walking about, and went in to tell her the news.

April looked puzzled. "I mean," Gay sighed, "Cherry has come to New York to carve out a career. And incidentally to carve up a few millionaires, I guess. She wants to live here. I gave her my other twin bed."

April said blankly: "Oh, I wonder if mother knows where she is."

"I guess not," Gay said. "She has given up college and broken her engagement to Pat. She went out this morning to look for a job as a model. I didn't tell you when you came because I thought you'd better get some sleep first."

* * *

April loved her younger sister dearly. But her heart sank at the thought of the added responsibility of trying to manage Cherry in New York. Tall, lovely golden Cherry with the face of an angel and the wild, untamed heart of a gypsy.

"She's in a mad mood," Guy warned. "It all seems to have been brought about by your divorce. She says she'll never marry a struggling young lawyer like Pat. That if she's ever left holding the bag by a man like you, it'll be full of everything in the world she wants. I think you should ship her right back home."

April sighed: "That wouldn't help any. She wouldn't go. If she doesn't stay here she'll get into some kind of trouble. You know Cherry when she gets in a mood. We'd better humor her."

"Darling!" Gay protested, "You can't mother the whole world! Why don't you think of yourself for a change? Haven't you got your hands full enough as it is, with Kenny to raise and educate? Don't take on any more parasites."

Gay and April had been born and brought up in the same small town in Virginia, and they had been close friends all their lives April felt she could not have gone through her marital break without the loyal friendship of the tall, red headed Gay. She was cheerful and full of good humor, but could speak her mind in no uncertain terms when the occasion arose.

Gay was more than attractive with her green eyes and white skin, and very popular with men. But at twenty-six had never married. It was simply, she said, because she had never met a man she trusted enough to fall in love with. April felt it was because Gay had seen the marriages of so many of her friends end in disaster.

April was trying to eat an afternoon breakfast and Gay was having her lunch when Hyacinthe came in with the paper and laid it beside April's plate.

"Yo' all bettah eat ever' thing honey," the old darky patted her cheek, "or Hyacinthe goin' spank you."

April smiled at her affectionately and opened the paper. It was then the second big blow of the day fell. For there on the front page was a picture of Hill sitting at a table in a night club with a woman, and the headline read:

* * *

"It — can't be true," April gasped "Look! A picture of Dru Bayne and Hill. It—says they're going to be married."

"Wh—what? Oh, it must be a publicity stunt. You know how Dru loves the headlines. Let me see?"

April handed the paper to Gay, tears filling her eyes.

"I it's all my fault," she said unhappily. "If I hadn't done what I did last night at the airport, driving away with Curt De Witt"

"Stop it'" Gay said almost crossly. "Don't blame yourself for his damn foolishness. He's on his own now"

"But it is my fault," April persisted. "You know how jealous he is He probably called Dru right afterward and he was tight enough to do almost anything You know she's always been crazy about him."

"Well let her have him!" Gay threw down the paper "It would serve them both right! They'd be a fine pair!"

"But she'll ruin his life," April wailed. You know how selfish and unscrupulous she is! And Hill is such a child."

"Rot!" Gay exploded. "If he gets mixed up with a few gals like Dru Bayne he'll realize soon enough what a fool he was to lose you."

"Oh, what shall I do?" April asked desperately. "I've got to do something to stop him from marrying her."

"You'll stay out of this and let Hill work out his own salvation," Gay said firmly. "If you don't you'll be a great deal more sorry than you are now."

* * *

The door bell rang and Hyacinthe came into the dinette with a box. It was orchids from Curt De Witt. Gay was delighted that they had arrived at what she considered the psychological moment.

"They're lovely," April wiped her tears. "He's a grand person, isn't he?"

"He's got good taste in women—and orchids," Gay looked at the flowers half enviously. "Isn't it marvelous you met him?"

"I suppose so," April took the card from its envelope. "But I can't see it makes much difference."

"Keep that chin up, lovely lady," the card read in De Witt's hand writing. "I'll call you about three to see if you would like to dine and go to the opening of 'Sister Suzie' tonight. Don't disappoint me. Curt."

April handed the card to Gay, sighing.

"I couldn't bear to go now, after seeing the paper."

Gay got up: "You'll go if I have to chloroform you! How can you be such a nitwit? Sit here and bawl when you've got a chance to go out and have dinner and go to one of the biggest openings Broadway has ever seen. Don't talk like a martyr!"

In spite of April's protests Gay took matters into her own hands. She got out a new lipstick red chiffon evening gown of her own and insisted that April wear it.

"You'll look like a huzzy and no one will suspect you've got anything on your mind but how to land a millionaire." Gay grinned. "Here try it on," she took April by the shoulders. "It'll be longer on you, more formal."

* * *

April had a quiet taste in clothes. She wore plain tailored things always, with a distinguished air that made her look like a quaint little quaker. This was in keeping with her personality; the quiet charm of her voice and manner. She was so feminine and lady-like that it was always a surprise to people who did not know her well to find out she could accomplish almost any dificult task she set her hand to.

When she slipped into Gay's backless red gown it was so different from her own wardrobe that she could scarcely believe she was looking at herself. She laughed shakily:

"Oh, Gay! I can't go out in this."

"You look marvelous!" Gay enthused. "Don't be silly. It gives you color, and the Lord knows you can use a little of it. You've looked like a drooping lily. I'll do your hair up off your ears and you can wear my emerald set. You'll wow 'em."

In spite of the heaviness of her heart, April allowed Gay to have her own way. When Curt phoned at three she told him she would be ready at six.

* * *

Kenny was too excited with the idea of having his mother home to spend the entire afternoon playing in the back yard, and he was underfoot most of the time chattering or climbing into her arms to kiss her every few minutes.

Gay was relieved that Cherry hadn't got back before it was time for April to leave for the evening. Hyacinthe's eyes almost popped out of her kinky head when Gay paraded April into the kitchen after she had dressed her and done her black hair high on top of her head.

The lip stick red of the gown brought out the gardenia white of her lovely face, and the emeralds in her ears and at her throat gave sparkle to the wide gray eyes that had been filled with pain so long. Hyacinthe almost dropped the dish she was washing, exclaiming with a broad grin:

"Well, bless mah soul, honey! Yo' all ought to be in de movies. Ain't she de pretties' thing yo' evah laid eyes on Miss Gay?"

She stood back admiring her while April turned around for inspection.

EXAM OPEN FOR HEAT TREATER

George H. Hoover, Mansfield civil service officer, today announced an open competition examination for the position of heat treater at either Wright field in Dayton or Paterson field in Fairfield.

Hoover said the position paid $1,860 and would be open to U. S. citizens with at least four years' progressive training or experience in heat-treating of ferrous and non-ferrous metals and alloys to produce required hardness, tensile strength and elongation.

Those wishing to apply for the examination were requested by Hoover to see him at the Mansfield post office.

More than one billion copies of the Bible have been printed.

Musical Show.

James Roosevelt's first Hollywood production, "Pot O' Gold," opening Thursday at the Park hinges its story on the whims of an eccentric millionaire who sells vitamized foods. His impecunious nephew and an equally impecunious dance band complicate his personal life as well as his radio broadcasts. James Stewart and Paulette Goddard furnish the romantic interest. Horace Heidt's dance band, the music, and Charles Winninger portrays the millionaire. Johnny Mack Brown has the role of a two-gun range rider hired to stop Indian and outlaw attacks on pony express riders in the second production, "Pony Post."

GEN. JOHNSON:

By. GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—Here is a fan letter: "I hate to say this but I feel that you have let us down in not insisting that draftees be discharged after one year's service. Many of your friends feel the same way.

I don't always have a chance to read your column. Sometimes I don't see daily papers and sometimes I am not in a place where you are published.

"I know that you boosted the selective draft from the beginning. But we were told that it was to be for one year's 'training.' I had several causes for claiming exemption. I had a good job in what is now called a defense industry. My boss promised he would hold it open for a year. I was engaged. My girl promised she would wait. I thought it was up to me to get myself ready for whatever might happen. Both of us believed that a year was not too much to sacrifice.

"But nobody told us that this willingness was to put us in a special class where, because of it, I would have to serve indefinitely.

"The press did not tell us. Our representatives in congress didn't tell us. Even you didn't tell us. We feel fooled." Etc.

There is not space to quote this letter in full. It is echoed in one way or another in scores of letters, but I chose this one because in its entirety it is well-reasoned, temperate and sincere.

First let me register an alibi. Over and over again this column warned of the jokers (if you want to call them that) in all the service bills to the effect that, if congress should declare the "national interest be imperilled," all classes—national guard, reservists and selectees could be held indefinitely. It warned but it did not protest.

If the national interest is imperilled, and obviously it is, there is no escape from this grim inequality of burdens.

* * *

I think my correspondent is quite right in saying that this provision in these laws was not given enough publicity and emphasis. In one of the most effective speeches in the recent debate on extension of these terms of service, Senator Vandenberg said something to the effect that some of the greatest frauds are put over in the "small type" in contracts. It is the business of legislators to read the small type and I can't recall that even the senator made much fuss about these lines which were in the draft act, the national guard act of 1920 (amended 1938) and public resolutions 75 and 96 governing the terms of service of various classes of civilian soldiery.

When war draws near, and once again I quote from ecclesiastics, "there is no discharge in that war."

The present debate and pending action in congress on extending the term of service by 12 or 18 months is just some more froth.

This may be bitter and unpopular reading to such young friends as my correspondent but it is the truth. Although it comes with the bark off, if I know our younger generation—and I have four of them in my own family—that is the way they want it.

Light Vote Marks Primaries In Ohio

THIS IS THE YEAR, IF YOU LIKE PEACHES

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — If peaches constitute your dish, Ohioans, this is your year.

The state's 1941 peach crop was estimated at 1,394,000 bushels today by the Ohio cooperative crop reporting service, more than three times the 443,000-bushel yield last year when the crop was unusually short.

Although the prospective peach yield was slated for the greatest increase, bumper crops of corn, wheat and other fruits were forecast.

Approximately 159,348,000 bushels of corn will be harvested, averaging 49 bushels an acre. The record average of 50 bushels an acre was set in 1939. The 1940 corn crop totaled 120,750,000 and the 10-year average was 139,956,000.

The estimated winter wheat harvest of 49,700,000 was an increase over last month's forecast. The average yield an acre was set at 25 bushels, highest since the yield of 29 bushels in 1931. Last year's harvest was 42,097,000 and the 10-year average 40,718,000. Oats were expected to average 42.5 bushels an acre, 1.5 short of the record of 1940.

Estimates of other crops, compared with 1940 yields (in parentheses) include:

Commercial apples, 7,264,000 bushels (5,074,000); pears, 996,000 bushels (816,000); grapes, 28,100 tons (37,500); sweet cherries 480 tons (380); and sour cherries 8,610 tons (6,800).

Forecasts for other crops with 1940 yield in parentheses were:

Potatoes, 11,128,000 bushels (11,800,000 in 1940 when more acreage was planted).

Sugar beets, 333,000 tons (375,000).

Oats, 47,855,000 bushels (44,880,000).

Barley, 1,947,000 bushels (1,650,000).

Rye, 1,558,000 (1,683,000).

Tame hay, 3,721,000 tons (4,241,000).

Burley tobacco, 11,250,000 pounds (12,500,000); and cigar filler tobacco, 13,524,000 pounds (15,876,000).

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield's Johnny Appleseed and John Simpson junior high schools and the new lights at Stadium Field are described as "a "typical application of up-to-date lighting" by a writer in the August issue of The Nation's Schools, a nationally circulated education magazine. With the article are pictures of the stadium lights during a football game, the John Simpson library and cafeteria, and a classroom at Johnny Appleseed junior high school. The article, written by W. H. Kahler, illuminating engineer for the Westinghouse lighting division, Cleveland, is entitled "Mansfield Sets An Example."

The aquarium at John Simpson junior high school is in an uproar these days and all because a little catfish was turned loose in the big bowl. The catfish, showing unexpected ferocity for its size, soon made quick work of the gold fish. Principal H. J. Dotson and John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board of education, thought it was a shame to let the catfish have the aquarium to himself so they dropped in several minnows. Too agile for the catfish, the minnows are still alive and growing so big that Dotson and Eisaman plan to take them along on their next fishing trip.

Not wanting to be outdone by her elders in their display of patriotism, little Mary Wymond, just three years old, gathered up the flags in front of the Precinct F, Third ward, voting booth at John Simpson Junior high school yesterday and marched up and down the sidewalk with them. Voting booth workers enjoyed the little girl's parade, but they had to bring the flags back to designate the location of the voting place.

Several Mansfield voters exercised their "write-in" privilege yesterday, but election board members guessed most of the names were put on the ballots more in fun than in an attempt to nominate another candidate. C. H. "Dutch" Bollman of the Ohio Public Service company received six votes for councilman-at-large, while Miss Mary Newcomer got one vote for council in the Second ward. One Democratic voter in the First ward marked every name on the ballot except the candidate for council, so the election board threw out the ballot. In the Second ward, Republican Councilman C. N. Shultz received one Democratic vote for council.

Mansfield was being searched today for additional scores of "The Mikado," for use by the Children's theater Friday night when the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera is presented at South park. Several copies which the organization was expecting did not arrive at the last minute and Mrs. Charles Anglin, who is training the singers, said that two or three scores would solve the problem.

BALLOT TOTAL LOWEST CAST IN 20 YEARS

Lutz and Haller Nominated In Ashland; Shreffler Ruled Out In Shelby Race.

The primary lull that kept voting in Mansfield down to the lowest mark in years yesterday was felt in cities throughout the state where the total vote was reported the lowest in 20 years.

Mansfield's total vote of 1,777 was less than nine per cent of the city's registration of approximately 21,000, while other cities cast equally light votes. In Lancaster, only 1,492 voters of a possible 11,000 went to the polls, and at Fremont, a city of 14,000 population, only 693 persons voted.

Mayoralty contests furnished the chief interest. At Akron, Mayor Lee D. Schroy, seeking a fourth term, held a 2-to-1 lead over his nearest rival in the Republican race. George J. Harter won the Democratic race with Walter J. Coyle, former city editor of the old Times-Press, running second.

Probably the heaviest vote of the day was cast in Dayton, where 25,000 persons went to the polls and defeated a charter amendment designed to provide additional money for the city operating fund.

At Massillon Jacob Sechler Coxey, "general" of his "armies" of unemployed in their marches on Washington in 1894 and 1914, finished last in a field of four in the Democratic primary for mayor. He received only 220 votes to the 771 cast for the successful candidate, Mayor Harry W. Lash.

Ashland made a better showing than most cities, however, turning out 2,307 votes to decide a heated mayoralty contest. Mayor Howard S. Lutz and Glenn B. Haller were nominated from a field of five, but Haller received nine more votes than the incumbent mayor. They will be opponents in the fall election.

The vote was Haller, 763; Lutz, 754; Arthur L. Vanosdall, 434; Paul W. Fike, 271, and Clarence R. Keener, 59.

In the only other contest, Bryan A. Easterday, incumbent Fourth ward councilman, and Walter G. Straits were nominated for council in the Fourth ward, defeating Thomas B. Drake. The city has a charter government and nominates its candidate on a non-partisan ballot, the two highest candidates receiving the nominations.

At Shelby, a write-in campaign to place H. D. Shreffler, a theater operator, on the ballot for mayor against Mayor W. R. Morris, brought Shreffler 39 votes, but they will not be considered valid, Law Director Frank C. Long told the county board of elections today. Mayor Morris, a Republican, is seeking re-election on a non-partisan ballot. Unopposed, he received 179 votes.

Long said the charter form of government in Shelby makes no provision for writing in the names of would-be candidates. He added that Shreffler indicated he would not be interested in running even if his name could be put on the November ballot.

Three other men, including Bert Fix, veteran Sharon township clerk, received write-in votes for mayor.

There are only two posts in the city for which there will be contests in the November election. For council-at-large, Arthur J. Spayde polled 126 votes yesterday to 115 for Wilbur Workman. In the Fourth ward, David Kinsell received 156 votes and David W. Cook, 87. In each case, both candidates will be on the November ballot.

A light vote was cast in Crestline where City Treasurer Albert P. Sonner won the Democratic nomination for mayor in the lone primary contest. He defeated C. Edward Ryan, 337 to 290.

Despite three Democratic contests at Galion, only 425 Democratic votes were cast in the city. Otto Pfeifer defeated Lawrence Neumann for the council president nomination, and G. C. Treisch was winner over O. W. Cronenwett in the First ward council contest. In the other contest, A. A. Connor, Harry Volk, and William Barr were nominated for the three council-at-large posts. The fourth man was William Kunkel.

Neither condidate for mayor had opposition. They are William Amann, former county commissioner, Democrat, and W. M. King, Republican, incumbent mayor.

Only 957 votes were cast in the Bucyrus primary, less than half the vote of two years ago. William F. Whiteamire won the Democratic nomination for mayor, defeating George Kingenberger, 657 to 182.

In the only other contest, Mrs. Esther Dobbins, city treasurer, won the Democratic nomination over Mrs. Nell Carrigan. Both are Democrats. The G. O. P. ticket will be headed by John W. Loomis, nominated for mayor without opposition.

THE rag-chewers at a large table included Nicky Blair, who is Billy Rose's major-domo at the Diamond Horseshoe, and some miscellaneous gents with their beautiful dollies.

Along came a gent who stopped at the table and delved into the conversation. Ronnie Cunningham, the little dancing girl from "Panama Hattie," had read in Emily Post that it was polite to keep a conversation spinning by introducing topics of interest to one and all, so mindful of Nicky Blair she asked the newly arrived gent if he ever got around to the Diamond Horseshoe.

"Once in a while," he said.

"Do you know any of the girls there?" Miss Cunningham pursued politely.

"A few," said the gent. "I own the place."

And thereupon the gent, who was Billy Rose, departed wondering no doubt how a face that gets around as much as his—in the flesh and in photograph — could fail to get recognized by a little Broadway baby.

Lily Pons has just finished her 10th year of public performances in this country, but the diminutive diva still suffers from an odd form of stage fright—slight spells of dizziness preceding each performance.

Late in the afternoon of the day set for her recent Lewisohn stadium concert, Lily was in her room waiting for word from Mrs. Guggenheim as to whether or not the performance would take place, as rain had been threatened. Mrs. Guggenheim telephoned and reported that things were still uncertain.

"It doesn't matter now," Lily sighed. "I've had my dizzy spell already."

A movie producer, who shall be nameless because he would not like it to get out that he was a soft-hearted movie producer, waxed sentimental as he reported a tale proving that ambition is sometimes tempered by sentiment, ethics and loyalty.

He pointed out what the public seems to be well aware of: that there is no rhythm trio to top the Andrews Sisters. And they're moving further and further ahead on the strength of their record sales (approaching 5,000,000 discs) and their motion picture appearances with Abbott and Costello.

Their big goal, of course, is to do a picture of their own.

Well, they got that chance last week. Their studio called them in and tossed at them the script of a story made to order for them. It was called "Juke Box Jennie."

And the girls shook their heads. All three of them, in unison.

The studio couldn't quite figure out the ethics involved, but it boiled down to the fact that juke box owners don't like to have their coin machines called juke boxes, for some reason. And the Andrews girls, who were skyrocketed to fame and fortune when their disc of "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen" was spining in every machine in the land, knew how the juke box owners felt.

That was why they said no, thanks, to the studio—and risked what may be their only chance of ever staring in a picture of their own.

BACK IN CELLS

O. S. R. Inmates Returned After Being Fugitives One Day.

Two inmates today had been returned to the Ohio State Reformatory, following a one-day holiday which they took from the Sandusky Honor camp last Thursday.

The men, John Jakubowski, 20, of Franklin county and Virgil Poynter, 20, of Hamilton county, were apprehended by Toledo police and returned to the O. S. R. Saturday, Glattke said. Both will be assessed additional time.

ILL TWO YEARS

Mrs. Elizabeth Hazlett, Member of Pioneer Family, Dies.

Mrs. Elizabeth Douglass Hazlett, 88, died yesterday at her home in the Blymyer apartments, 71 Park avenue west, after an illness of nearly two years.

She was the daughter of the late John J. and Sophia Schrack Douglass. Born in a log cabin on the Douglass farm in Pleasant valley Sept. 11, 1853, her grandfather, Samuel Douglass, cleared the present Douglass farm.

She was the sister of the late A. A. Douglass and Judge S. M. Douglass, attorneys in Mansfield for many years.

Surviving is a daughter, Alberta Shearer, and one son, Blake Hazlett, both of Mansfield.

Two children, Olive Blanche and Augustus S. Hazlett, preceded her in death.

Mrs. Hazlett was a member of the First Lutheran church and Rev. Grover Swoyer of that church will conduct services tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Jones memorial home.

Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

MRS. TEDROW, 88, STRICKEN TODAY

Nova Woman Was Life-Long Ashland County Resident.

ASHLAND—Mrs. Hattie Tedrow, 88, of Nova, a life-long resident of Ashland county, died today at her home in Nova.

Mrs. Tedrow was born in Mifflin township Feb. 21, 1853. A resident of Nova for the past 24 years, she was a member of the Nova United Brethern church.

Mrs. Tedrow is survived by three daughters, Mrs. John Speck, of Nova; Mrs. Ida Gordon, of Ashland; and Mrs. Earl Daniels, of Barberton; four sons, Milo, of Birmingham, Ia., Clyde, of Sullivan, Charles, of Nova, and Ora Tedrow, of Ashland; 15 grandchildren, 19 great grandchildren, and two great great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the late home in Nova, Friday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Nova cemetery.

MAKES DEBUT WITH PLAYERS

Ten-Year-Old Niece of Madge Kinsey To Appear Tonight.

Patricia Travis, 10-year-old niece of Madge Kinsey, will play her first part here this season tonight, when the Madge Kinsey Players present "Sawdust Parent," under canvas on West Second street.

The same production will also be staged Thursday night. A new play, "Toby, the Milkmaid," is billed for Friday and Saturday nights.

STAGES SCRAP IRON CAMPAIGN

Middletown Collects Discarded Articles To Bolster Steel Supply.

(By United Press)

MIDDLETOWN — Scrap iron—like aluminum—today will be collected at Middletown, in a house-to-house campaign that probably will be the forerunner of a nation-wide drive for discarded articles of iron and steel to bolster the nation's dwindling steel supply.

The Middletown defense council sponsored the door-to-door drive for old stoves, radiators, skillets, lawn mowers, garden tools, wash tubs, worn-out plows, roller skates and similar wornout implements to alleviate the shortage of scrap iron at the American Rolling Mill company here.

Similar drives are planned at Ashland, Ky., and Catlettsburg, Ky.

Officials of Armco have contacted Cincinnati leaders in an effort to make that city the first metropolitan center in the nation to sponsor a scrap iron pickup campaign.

The Middletown defense council will collect the scrap in trucks with the aid of local firemen, the American Legion, boy scouts and Armco employes, all members of the recently-former Armco defense committee.

The collected scrap will be sold by the council to Armco at the prevailing market price and proceeds of the sale will be turned over to the United Service Organizations.

Armco officials revealed that one of the company's open hearth furnaces had been shut down because of a shortage of scrap iron and that others will discontinue operations unless an additional supply of scrap can be obtained.

NYA Members To Hear Judge At 'Inaugural'

Members of the Charles Mill Resident center of the National Youth Administration are going to further practice democracy Friday night at 7 p. m. when Probate Judge S. H. Cramer will help them inaugurate their new mayor, James Long of Prospect.

After a hectic election two weeks ago, Long, running on the Unionist party ticket, was elected mayor. Robert C. Young, one of the NYA supervisors for the camp, said the election and the program were designed to teach youth the processes and values of a democratic system of government.

Following time honored custom, Long appointed his aides last night, naming John Ransome, also of Prospect, safety commissioner; John Stafford, Millersburg, recreational commissioner; George Davidson, Bellefontaine, social director; James Whitfield, Columbus, prosecuting attorney; and Earl Curtis, Lima, canteen commissioner.

BARN BURNED

ASHLAND—A barn on the farm of Mrs. Ray Wharton of Ashland R. D. 5 four miles west of here burned this morning, the Ashland fire department reported.

Fire department members said the fire started while threshers were working in the barn this morning and destroyed a threshing machine, a quantity of grain and a straw stack at the side of the barn. The department did not know how the fire started.

PLAN TO FILM 'TIME OF YOUR LIFE' FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—William Saroyan, who put a $250,000 price tag on a pointless play so movie makers wouldn't pester him and then offered it to them free if the profits went to national defense, finally got a nibble today.

Lester Cowan, producer at Columbia studios, announced he would accept Saroyan's drama-less drama, "The Time Of Your Life," make it into a movie and give his proceeds to defense work.

"We'll see whether Saroyan meant what he said, or whether he was only making an idle gesture," Cowan said.

The 32-year-old Saroyan, who has been called by his enemies the bad boy of American letters and by his puzzled audiences the modern master of double talk, won the Pulitzer prize with "The Time Of Your Life." It is a kind of "Grand Hotel" of the cocktail lounges concerning itself with snatches of the lives of a dozen or so San Franciscans who drop into a saloon during the course of an evening. Its almost complete lack of plot scared away the movie makers, except for Cowan, who tried to buy it at a "reasonable" price months ago.

Saroyan wired him "nothing doing." He said that to get the job done right he'd have to produce it and direct it himself. Cowan threw up his hands. Other picture makers showed no interest in the play at any price.

Then last week, Saroyan bought a full page in Variety, the theatrical paper, offering his play to any producer who'd give the profits to America's defense effort.

Two-Base Hits Give Braves Victory Over Tiffin Hens

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Biographical sketches of Ohio State university football players for the coming season, put out by the university's athletic news service include this choice bit:

JOHN HALLABRIN—After playing behind Jim Langhurst for two seasons, and having a string of tough luck, this Mansfield fullback should come into his own this season. His 190 pounds are used with tremendous power in crashing the line. He is 21 years old, enrolled in Education, and a member of Sigma Chi.

* * *

A string of tough luck? That's a nice polite way of explaining why Johnnie didn't play last year after a great season as a sophomore when the injured Langhurst was on the shelf.

Yes, it was Johnnie's tough luck that he was playing back of Langhurst and that Langhurst was captain last fall and could refuse substitutions.

But need we go into all that again?

* * *

Yes, Jolting John has come into his own on the Ohio State campus this year, and he's not the kind of a guy to be shoved out of it easily. You saw what the blog said: 190 pounds. Last year it was 210.

* * *

"Why," I asked Manager Harry Taylor of the Tiffin Hens Monday night, "didn't you guys strike out, speed the game up, and get a win out of that 6-0 score before it rained."

"We might have won," said Taylor, "but I don't play ball that way. The fans pay their money to see us give our best, and that's what we give.

* * *

"And," Taylor continued, "the boys like their base hits and I wouldn't ask any one of them to give 'em up for a strikeout. Furthermore I happen to know there were two scouts in the stands tonight, and these boys want to go up, and so do I, as a manager.

"But the main reason is: I saw that strikeout stunt pulled in Toledo once last year, and it just about killed baseball in that town. The fans don't go for it."

* * *

We've got to think about the fan,
We won't whiff, even when we can.

* * *

And here was their musical cue:

* * *

We'll put our clubs in a hock shop,
We'll throw away every ball.
Let's take a nap, dear,
Get out of that trap, dear,
Let's get away from it all.

THISTLE DOWN BETS REACH HIGH TOTAL

Redskins Tackle Browns

Milnar's Comeback Gives Tribe Lift.

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Buoyed by Al Milnar's pitching comeback, the Indians tackled the last-place Browns today in the opener of a two-game series.

Joe Krakauskas was slated to hurl for the Redskins, with Denny Galehouse twirling for the home club.

* * *

Milnar, making his first start since July 20, stopped Detroit with five hits in the nightcap of a doubleheader yesterday, 4 to 1, to give Cleveland an even break. Bob Feller suffered his ninth defeat in the first tussle as Al Benton shut out the Tribe, 2 to 0.

* * *

Getting four hits off Benton, Cleveland threatened to score only twice. In the second inning, Jeff Heath led off with a triple but was left stranded. Four innings later the Indians filled the bases with one out, but Pinch-Hitter Gerry Walker grounded into a double play.

Meanwhile the Tigers took advantage of eight hits and seven walks to nip Feller's bid for his 21st victory. One run came in the fifth on Frankie Croucher's single, a sacrifice and Charley Gerringer's one-base blow. Croucher's second hit drove in the other tally the next inning.

* * *

Milnar pitched in 1940 form, striking out five batters in notching his ninth decision against 13 setbacks. The Tigers scored their sole run in the eighth on a walk, Rollie Hemsley's error and a single by Pinky Higgins.

* * *

Cleveland shelled Johnny Gorsica off the mound by collecting all its runs in the sixth inning. Milnar started the fireworks with a single and went to second as Ken Keltner walked. Bruce Campbell then muffed Larry Rosenthal's fly to fill the bases. Heath's single posted two runs, Rosenthal came in on a long drive and Lou Boudreau's double plated Heath.

The sizzling St. Louis Cardinals are back on top of the topsy-turvy National league today with a head of steam like the locomotive of a fast freight.

* * *

They won their fourth straight contest and spurted to a game and a half margin over the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday just before rolling out of St. Louis on probably the toughest touring itinefary of any big league club this year—a 19-day trip that will take them all over the

Thirty Two Cars Entered

Lights Prepared For Midget Auto Races.

With 32 of the nation's top-flight midget drivers entered in the four nights of racing at the big Richland county fair next week, everything is being rushed to completion at the fairgrounds in making ready for the big fair.

Elmer M. Miller, veteran auto race promoter from Ft. Wayne, Ind., who has been placed in charge of the midget racing, stated the entry list so far promised to be one of the best star-studded fields of cars and drivers ever assembled in this part of the country.

Entries have been received from nine states, Promoter Miller looks for the entry list to climb to 40-cars entered by next Wednesday night the opening night for the midget racing.

The lighting system has been completely gone over around the entire course of the track.

Several tons of calcium chloride has been purchased by the fair board to be placed on the track for the elimination of any dust. Promoter Miller who has had many years experience with the treating of dirt tracks, saws no dust will be seen at the races and every body is assured clear vision of the entire course of the track.

A-Golf League Race Tightens

Barnes & Schmid Move Up on Shutout Win.

Barnes & Schmid blanked the Greystone Nite club 5 to 0 last evening to climb within one point of the News-Journal A golf league leaders, Long Bar, who dropped a 2 to 3 decision to Sloan Drugs.

Cairn's Hardware trimmed Yuncker Sports 4 to 1, and Richland Printing scored a 3 to 2 victory over Andregg Billiards in the other league matches.

Page Dairy Club Cancels Game With Stars Tonight

There will be no softball game tonight at the Fairground.

The state champion Toledo Page Dairy club last night cancelled the game scheduled for this evening with the Mansfield All Stars, composed mainly of last year's Sons of Herman team.

When the Pages called up to inform the Mansfield promoters that they would be unable to get here before 9:30 tonight, they were told they might as well stay home. No crowd would sit and wait that long for them.

So the Pages' cancelled. There's a suspicion they weren't too anxious to play anyhow. Mansfield teams have been poison for them in the past.

Old-Timers Plan Twelfth Reunion

Ball games of yesteryear will be played over, base hits of another day will ring again, old pitching feats will be dusted off and rehashed when Mansfield's old-time ball players hold their 12th annual reunion at Spiker's Grove, on the Marion avenue road, Sunday at 12 p. m.

Old-time ball players, their friends and families are invited to the outing which will include during the afternoon a program of horseshoes, kittenball and music.

Carl Maul, manager of the association since it's organization 12 years ago, is in charge of arrangements.

New Coach At Lucas Named

Chuckovitz Assistant Succeeds Scheidler.

LUCAS—The employment of Lawrence L. Deckrosh, of Holland, as an instructor and athletic coach for Lucas high school, was announced here today by Supt. V. L. Gilliland.

* * *

For the past two years Deckrosh has been on the coaching staff at Holland where he was assistant to "Chuck" Chuckovitz, famed as one of America's greatest basketball stars during his career at Toledo U.

* * *

A graduate of Ohio Northern university at Ada, Deckrosh also studied at Defiance college. He is married and has two sons aged 5 and 3.

The new coach will move his family to Lucas as soon as suitable living quarters can be found.

Deckrosh will succeed Robert Scheidler, Lucas coach for the past two years, and also from Ohio Northern, who resigned recently to enter the engineering department of the Tappan Stove company in Mansfield.

RED LEGS FAIL BOOSTER WHEN HE WATCHES TILTS

ASHLAND, Ky. — (AP) — Since 1923, Courtney Clark has seen the Cincinnati Reds play 25 games but not once has he been there when they won.

"I guess it just isn't in the cards for me to see 'em win," lamented Clark, associate editor of a railroad magazine and a dyed-in-the wool Cincinnati fan.

Mansfield Remains Four Games Back of Fremont Green Hose

MANSFIELD BRAVES remained in the running for the second-half championship of the Ohio State league last night with a 6 to 2 victory over the Mud Hens at Tiffin.

They are still four games behind the Fremont Green Sox who defeated Fostoria, dropping the Red Birds three and a half games behind the second-place Braves.

* * *

After the first innings when the Hens got their two markers, Chuck Byers kept Taylor's Tots completely in check, fanning 14 of the Hens, and limiting them to eight hits over the nine-inning route.

A blast of two-base hits won for the Braves, who collected four of the two-ply shots, with three of them figuring in the scoring.

Mansfield tied the score with two runs in the second inning when Bill Salem walked, Manager Clowson doubled, and Salem counted on an infield out by Dick Morse, and Clowson tallied on Bill Reinka's out at first.

In the fourth Morse doubled and scored on Reinka's single.

Three more runs came in in the sixth. Morse singled, Reinka was safe on Reihing's error, Bobby TeStruth was safe on another error by Reihing, Morse scoring, and Tim Mangan doubled, scoring Reinka and TeStruth.

Bill Salem got the other double.

In the absence of Bill Ward, who quit the league between games of Mansfield's doubleheader at Findlay Sunday, Jim Coleman of the Braves and Lee Stuckman of the Hens called the plays on the bases.

The Braves go to Lima tonight, and meet the Pandas here tomorrow night in a single game at 8 o'clock.

Indians Face Tail-Enders

league before they get back home on Labor day.

It was the eighth time the circuit lead had changed hands since the last of April.

The Dodgers were dumped 8-5 and 2-0 in a doubleheader by the New York Giants while the Redbirds battled to an 8-7 decision over the Chicago Cubs.

A crowd of 39,145 Brooklyn fans, second-largest ever to jam into the 34,000 capacity Ebbets Field, turned out with the expectation of seeing the Dodgers massacre the Giants. They had won eight straight from New York and the Terrible Terrymen had been pretty terrible recently.

Instead they saw the Giants blast Whitlow Wyatt off the mound with only one out in the first inning of the first game, stride on to victory with Master Melvin Ott hitting two three-run homers, his 20th and 21st, and then capture the nightcap on the magnificent three-hit pitching of Cliff Melton.

The affair at St. Louis was a see-saw struggle with each team using four pitchers and the Cubs outhitting the Cards, 16 to 15. Johnny Mize hit a three-run circuit blow that broke a tie in the third inning, but the outcome eventually hinged on Frank (Creepy) Crespi's fourth hit of the day, a single scoring two runs in the eighth.

The Phillies nosed out the Boston Braves, 2-1, in 13 innings in the only other National league engagement.

The New York Yankees broke up a pitching duel between Dick Newsome and Spud Chandler with four runs in the eighth to beat the Boston Red Sox, 4-0. Chandler held the Red Sockers to six hits.

The St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox struggled 14 innings to a 6-6 tie before darkness intervened. The Browns built up a 6-0 lead off Bill Dietrich and then lost it in the fifth and sixth frames.

Washington whipped the Philadelphia Athletics, 9-3, with Buddy Lewis driving in five runs on two homers.

Two Richland Teams Lose

Yunckers and Shelby Defeated In Tourney.

Two of Richland county's three representatives in the district softball tournament at Ashland were counted out last night when the Yuncker Sports were defeated by the Elyria Silver Jewelers 6 to 5, and the Shelby Cycles went down before the Ashland Garber Printers 12 to 2.

In the other tourney tilt Lorain Hart Jewelers blanked Sandusky Moose 3 to 0.

Trailing 6 to 1, Yunckers staged a four-run rally in the sixth and put the first two men up in the seventh on base but were unable to drive over the tying marker.

Feature game of the evening was the Lorain-Sandusky tilt, with Ducar, Lorain hurler, pitching to only 22 batters. Two hits made by Sandusky were erased by double plays.

Renews Backstroke Duel

Helen Perry of Cleveland has arrived in High Point, N. C., to renew her duel with Gloria Callen for the throne of queen of the 100 meter backstroke swimmers in the United States. Last summer in the outdoor competition at Portland, Ore., Gloria nosed out the Ohio star in a close and thrilling race. During the winter in Buffalo, N. Y., at the national indoor meet, Helen turned the tables, beating out the Nyack, N. Y., girl in a hairline finish.

FREMONT OUTFIELDER JOINS RED BIRDS

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Outfielder Billy Ramsey, who refused to leave the Fremont Green Sox' Ohio State league team for a trial with the Springfield Cardinals of the Mid-Atlantic league, joined the Columbus Red Birds, American Association leaders, today under a 15-day option.

Property of the St. Louis Cardinals, Ramsey refused to sign with Springfield because of salary differences, Manager Chappie Geygan of Fremont said. He hit .338 for Fremont this season.

INDIANS GO MARKETING; PURCHASE OUTFIELDER

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—The Cleveland Indians today announced the purchase of Outfielder Fabian Gaffke from the Minneapolis Millers of the American Association.

* * *

Gaffke, who bats and throws right handed, may report for the last two weeks of the American league season. The purchase price was not disclosed.

* * *

Gaffke is batting at a .329 clip for the Millers and has batted in 79 runs. He received trials by the Boston Red Sox in 1936, 1937 and 1938 but each time returned to the American Association.

Navy Gridders Steal March

Swanson Has His Tars Working For Campaign.

By DAVE NOPPER

ANNAPOLIS, Md. —(AP)— This is strictly confidential stuff, so keep it under your hat — but Navy's gridders already are busy getting in shape for the approaching football season.

And, what's more, they've been at it for a couple of weeks.

* * *

The fact that Swede Larson, the Naval Academy's football prof, got a jump on the other pigskin tutors — maybe — was learned simply by reading his mail.

* * *

Coach Larson's first 1941 "report card," intended only for mom and pop back home, disclosed that their football-playing sons have been going through setting up exercises regularly.

'Time Well Spent'

The "report card" idea was conceived by Larson last year to keep the gridders' parents informed of their progress. And, he says, "It's time well spent."

The setting up exercises, Larson told the parents, were part of a "gradual development and physical building up" of his upperclassmen footballers.

Seniors and juniors, whose summer academic year began July 14, will be joined by the sophomores Aug. 18 and from then until Sept. 1 the squad will work out afternoons in shorts.

After Sept. 1 regular togs will be issued and heavy practice will get underway for the nine-game schedule opening Sept. 27.

* * *

Larson described the middies' prospects as "a shade better than in 1940" when Navy won six games, lost two and tied one.

* * *

The national defense program hasn't hit Navy hard yet but its effects will be felt seriously after the 1941 campaign.

To speed the supply of naval officers, the academy course has been cut from four years to three and all underclassmen who played football last year will finish their varsity competition this fall.

Stream-Lined Preparedness

This year's seniors will be graduated Dec. 19, half a year ahead of time. The juniors will be graduated in June a full year ahead of schedule.

The schedule:

Sept. 27, William and Mary; Oct. 4, West Virginia; Oct. 11, Lafayette; Oct. 18, Cornell; Oct. 25, Harvard; Nov. 1, Pennsylvania; Nov. 8, Notre Dame; Nov. 22, Princeton; Nov. 29, Army.

"Not a breather in the lot," Larson says.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES IN AIMLESS DRIFT

Latest War Developments Cause Conservative Share Bidding.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market continued today in much the same aimless drift as in recent sessions with rallying tendencies confined to a small group of specialties.

Bidding in the share division was held to conservative limits by the latest foreign developments, generally interpreted as unfavorable, and prospects for mounting difficulties for various industries affected by recent Washington action to tighten price and other economic controls.

Although electric power output dipped slightly under the previous week's outturn, analysts regarded the decline as having no special significance. It was the first drop in electric consumption in more than a month.

Also studied was the weekly report of operations in the petroleum industry which disclosed a record production of crude with a moderate decrease in stocks of finished and unfinished gasoline throughout the nation.

ORDER DRAFTED

But Seizure of Shipyards Await FDR'S Return.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Secretary of Navy Frank Knox resumed his conferences with President L. H. Korndorff of the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock company today as officials drafted an executive order authorizing seizure of the company's Kearny, N. J., shipyards.

Since the order would require President Roosevelt's signature, government seizure likely would await the chief executive's return from a vacation cruise later this week.

An official indicated that the company's offer to turn its strike-bound shipyards over to the navy "for immediate possession and operation" was not satisfactory. For that reason, it was believed that the government was proceeding with its original plans to seize the plant. He did not explain why the offer was unsatisfactory.

RELIEF DROPS

New Low Mark Set In Aid For Ohio's Poor Families.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Preliminary reports from 121 state relief areas showed today that the Ohio poor relief case-load dropped to a new all-time low in July despite the dismissal of 30,000 workers from WPA rolls. Many of the discharged WPA workers went on direct relief rolls.

The July case-load total, according to preliminary reports, was approximately 45,000, or 2,780 under the previous eight-year low established during June, 1941, when 47,980 cases were reported.

Indications were that the total relief costs for Ohio during July would amount to approximately $1,164,000, a decrease of more than $700,000 under July, 1940, and $17,000 under June, 1941. Relief costs during July a year ago amounted to $1,865,212 and for June of this year, $1,181,335.
